FRANCE TO PLEDGE AID TO BRITAIN

British Columbia Pins Great Hopes On Ottawa Meeting

Large Delegation Will Go From Here to Conference Called By Liberal Leader; Taxation, Trade, P.G.E. and Social and Welfare Matters Proposed For Discussion

Expect To Dispose Of "Artificial Barriers"

The B.C. Government today accepted Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's invitation to a Dominion-provincial conference early next month and immediately issued special instructions to departments to rush the work of completing the huge brief this province will take to the meeting.

Premier Pattullo in Vancouver today received word from Mr. King and at once set in motion preparations for the conference for which British Columbia has been waiting for the last eighteen months.

Several of the cabinet ministers will accompany the Premier to Ottawa. Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance; Attorney-General Gordon Sloan and Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, are almost certain to go. Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, may also attend.

British Columbia is depending upon this conference to remove some, at least, of the "artificial barriers" which, it is claimed, are blocking the progress of the province.

As a result of an immense amount of research already carried out, the provincial administration claims that the financial set-up between governments does not permit British Columbia the freedom of development it should have. The effect of this has been that the province has been to a large extent financially dependent on Ottawa throughout the depression. This same condition applies to the other western provinces.

In addition the economic policies of Canada, in the way of tariffs, freight rates and trading privileges work to the disadvantage of British Columbia which depends almost wholly for its prosperity upon being able to sell its products to the outside world while being hampered in trading by the national tariff.

TRENCH DEFENCES FOR ETHIOPIAN FORCES

While the Italian army in northern Ethiopia has been consolidating its gains, Emperor Haile Selassie's forces in the hilly country to the west and south have been preparing for their great defensive effort. Even trenches, unknown to Ethiopian warriors in bygone ages, have been dug. Above is a glimpse of an Ethiopian unit engaged at trench digging.

Laval Is Expected To Promise To Back British Fleet In Mediterranean

After Day of Indecision Paris Reports Cabinet Will Approve Premier's Stand in Upholding Naval Measures For League If Italy Resists

Britain Demands Clear Understanding

Associated Press
Paris, Oct. 17.—An authority stated late today that Premier Laval, backed by the French cabinet, probably will agree Monday to the British demand for French armed aid in the Mediterranean in case Italy attacks any British ships stationed there.

This answer was indicated after a day of indecision in which M. Laval was originally represented by reliable sources as refusing to promise the British French aid. The terms of the French decision await ratification by the cabinet and M. Laval is expected to call his governing body in session Monday morning.

TURKEY FOR SANCTIONS
Authoritative sources said Rustu Aras, Turkish foreign minister, who talked with Premier Laval today, told the French government head Turkey intends to support sanctions against Italy and it was reported Turkey would deny Italy the use of Turkish ports in case of trouble in the Mediterranean.

CHOICE TO BE MADE
Great Britain is understood to have told France that her choice now between Italy or the League of Nations would determine France's future position in British eyes.

Unofficially, this attitude was interpreted as meaning Great Britain would not go to the aid of France on the continent if the French should fail to co-operate in the Mediterranean.

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Oct. 17.—Great Britain has requested France to say definitely yes or no whether in event of an Italian attack on the British fleet in the Mediterranean the French fleet would give assistance. It was learned today Premier Laval of France has asked time to consider.

Historic Tacoma Hotel Razed With Loss of $400,000

Once Famed as Wonder of Puget Sound, Structure Destroyed To-day; Firemen Overcome Fighting Blaze

Associated Press
Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 17.—The historic Hotel Tacoma was completely destroyed by fire today. At least four persons were overcome by smoke.

Mrs. Edith Owens, a guest of the hotel, was carried from the building in an unconscious condition and taken to the Tacoma general hospital in the police ambulance.

Lieut. C. Smiley, Lieut. Stewart Lemm and Driver G. J. Lettman of the fire department were overcome while in the building combating flames.

The loss was estimated at about $400,000, covering the building and furnishings.

The hotel was designed by one of this country's most celebrated architects, Stanford White, who later was shot and killed by Harry K. Thaw in one of the nation's most notorious cases.

SPREAD QUICKLY
Fire broke out about 6:15 a.m. in the cabinet shop in the north end of the basement. Within ten minutes the fire had spread throughout the north wing of the building and in less than half an hour flames were roaring through the entire structure.

The Tacoma Hotel was opened in 1884. Its completion was one of the big events in the early history of the city.

EDEN GIVEN MORE GUARDS

British Spokesman at Geneva Gets Threatening Letters

(Canadian Press via Havas)
Geneva, Oct. 17.—Extraordinary police precautions were taken today to guard Mr. Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs, as the result of threatening letters he has received for his attitude toward the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The tenor of some of the messages was so menacing police decided to guard the minister more vigilantly than is customary with government representatives visiting Geneva.

ETHIOPIANS MASS AT FRONT

As Warriors Move End of Marking-time Period of War Approaches

By JAMES A. MILLS,
Associated Press Correspondent
Addis Ababa, Oct. 17.—The Ethiopian government ordered new cavalry and infantry detachments to march to the support of its northern and southern armies today, to meet an anticipated Italian advance into the empire from all fronts.

With the Ethiopian warriors manifestly eager to wield their spears and the Italian forces reported consolidated in their positions for resumption of the general invasion, an end to the marking-time period of the warfare was considered definitely in sight.

The capital buzzed with martial activity as Emperor Haile Selassie reviewed some 50,000 warriors—the greatest military parade ever presented in Addis Ababa.

The cavalry and infantry detachments, after marching past the Parliament Building, were scheduled to depart immediately to reinforce the defending forces on the north, confronting Eritrea, and on the south, facing Italian Somaliland.

NEW CABINET FOR AUSTRIA

Tension Accompanies Shuffle Carried Out By Chancellor Schuschnigg

Associated Press
Vienna, Oct. 17.—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and his cabinet resigned today. President Miklas immediately commissioned Dr. Schuschnigg to form a new government.

The half-hourly and other portions of the centre of the city were excited at dusk by sudden movements of police detachments.

Armed with rifles and machine guns, the military-appearing police marched into important public buildings throughout the city.

It was the first intimation to the general public that a political move was on foot.

Chancellor Schuschnigg, who assumed office a little more than a year ago after the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, went directly to the President with his resignation.

He submitted his new cabinet list almost at once.

MINISTERS DISAPPEAR
The most significant of his changes were the elimination of Emil Fey, former Vice-Chancellor of Austria, from the post of Minister of the Interior, the removal of Josef Reither as Minister of Finance.

ELECTION BET IS STREET SCENE

Canadian Press
Prince Albert, Sask., Oct. 17.—Saturday afternoon Roy French must wheel J. Hobbs down this city's main thoroughfare in a baby carriage or each pay $5 to Jim Henderson and George Campbell. French and Hobbs bet Liberal Leader Mackenzie King would lose his House of Commons seat in Monday's federal election.

RECOUNTS IN FOUR AREAS

Fate of Chapleau, Souris, West York and Vancouver-Burrard Seats Still in Air

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 17.—Of the dozen or so constituencies where close votes were recorded in Monday's federal election, recounts may be held in four. Definite decisions have not been made and probably will not be made until the ballot boxes are opened. In some ridings this will take place Monday, and in others October 25.

The four constituencies are West York, Ont.; Souris, Man.; Chapleau, Que., and Vancouver-Burrard. The closest vote in the country was recorded in the big new constituency of Chapleau, where, with returns incomplete, only one vote separated T. A. Lalonde, Liberal, and Frank Blais, Independent Liberal. Mr. Lalonde held the lead.

U.S. Vice-President Banquet Guest Here

"Cactus Jack" Garner Breaks His Self-imposed Rule and Makes Speech to Victorians "Not Written By State Department"

John N. "Cactus Jack" Garner, the first Vice-President of the United States ever to visit Victoria while in office, made one of his rare public speeches when he and the senatorial party traveling to the Philippine Islands were entertained by Victoria and the B.C. Government at a banquet in the Empress Hotel yesterday evening.

He explained first, however, that he would "say nothing" and then proceeded for ten minutes with pleasant and only a brief reference to the purpose of his mission of inaugurating the first president of the new republic.

"The American people have a habit of keeping their promises," he said. "They made a promise back in 91 that the Philippines should have their liberty and we are now keeping that promise. It may be a bit delayed but the promise was made and is being carried out."

Mr. Garner was given three rousing cheers from the combined American and Canadian audience when he rose to speak, following Mayor Leeming who had just said: "Any man who has the nickname of 'Cactus Jack' must be well beloved in his country."

PREMIER'S WELCOME
The Vice-President was welcomed on behalf of Canada and British Columbia by Premier Pattullo, who in his remarks touching upon the friendship between the two countries made a plea for greater interchange of trade between them.

MUSSOLINI AND GENERAL SPLIT

Addis Ababa Government Hears Report Duce Displeased With Army's Progress in Ethiopia and Gen. de Bono Offers Resignation

By JAMES A. MILLS,
Associated Press Correspondent
Addis Ababa, Oct. 17.—The Ethiopian Government issued an official communique today stating it was informed there were "grave differences of opinion" between Premier Mussolini and Gen. Emilio de Bono, his commander in Ethiopia, leading the latter to offer his resignation.

The official communique was issued shortly after Emperor Haile Selassie had informed the Associated Press: "I will not discuss peace while a single Italian soldier remains on my soil."

The Emperor's statement was given as a firm answer to reports of possible peace overtures.

The correspondent informed the Emperor Great Britain had refused to reduce its fleet in the Mediterranean. The Emperor exclaimed: "This proves Great Britain is determined, not merely by words but by the might of her navy and army, to compel all outlaws to respect the covenant of the League of Nations."

NEW DEFENCES AT BRITISH PORTS

Associated Press
London, Oct. 17.—Britain drove ahead with its defence preparations today. It was disclosed the government intends to send special investigators to principal British ports to survey docks with a view to protecting them against any air attack.

London, Liverpool, Southampton, Bristol and Cardiff would be among the ports considered.

Tokio, Oct. 17.—The Asahi Shimbun quotes a trustworthy source as saying the Soviet Union has asked whether Great Britain would favor sanctions in the event of an invasion of Soviet territory.

Report of Clash In British Somaliland

Italians Said to Have Crossed From Ethiopia; Deaths Reported; Italians Deny Clash Occurred

Associated Press
Zella, British Somaliland, Oct. 17.—Tribesmen reported today to the district commissioner here that the Seventeenth British Camel Corps, guarding the Somaliland frontier, suffered casualties during an Italian advance in the Ogaden Desert.

Italian forces have been reported penetrating northward, close to the British Somaliland border, in a drive directed at the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.

MISTAKE POSSIBLE
Details of the alleged incident were lacking, but authorities said they believed that if such a thing were true it would have been due either to the Italians unintentionally running over the boundary of their territory or to mistaking the British territory.

LEAGUE BANK IS SUGGESTED

Plan Advanced to Even Up Nations in Sanctions Against Italy

Associated Press
Geneva, Oct. 17.—The suggestion of a League of Nations bank to help nations establish a financial and economic boycott against Italy was heard today by the League's "mutual aid" committee.

This proposal was made by Demetrios Maximos of Greece after the sanctions committee, guided by the possibility of parliamentary revolts against sanctions, had adjourned without a decision.

"Stay Down" Mine Strike Near End

British Columbia Pins
Great Hopes on Ottawa Meeting

Premier Pattullo will embrace his representations to the conference in a nine-point programme.

FINANCIAL QUESTIONS

Three of these deal specifically with financials, as follows:

1. Redefining of jurisdiction over sources of revenue and taxation. Under this heading the province will ask for power to levy a sales tax, seek to have powers more clearly defined over such levies as amusement tax, gasoline tax and similar taxes that have sometimes been disputed as indirect levies. The question of the income tax, a field invaded by the Dominion during the war and retained since, is also at issue.

2. Securing local obligations to secure lower interest rates. With a refunding bill already passed by the Legislature, the government could go right ahead with this, but under the present condition of financial markets would require federal backing, probably through the central bank.

3. Making capital available to the province at low cost for public works and the development of natural resources. This is the province's proposal to provide work and give the necessary stimulation to private endeavor in speeding up the return of prosperity. The sum of $15,000,000 a year for five years has been mentioned for British Columbia.

In addition, the provincial government subscribes to the Liberal policy of setting up a national council to co-ordinate all agencies in dealing with unemployment as a Dominion responsibility, proposing a permanent policy to deal with it.

Redress for B.C.'s handicap in trade, as proposed in the Pattullo programme, opens up a wide field. It suggests regional tariff adjustments to give the province free trading privileges, or else some form of compensation to make up for the handicap. Equalizing of freight rates is another request.

British Columbia is anxious to have cleared up the confused relationships between the Dominion and the province, labor laws and other social and welfare matters. These have come into the limelight particularly during the last year due to the reform legislation brought down by the federal government.

PLAN FOR P.O.E.

Adjustment of B.C.'s terms of union in Confederation and the turning of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway over to the Canadian National Railway system are other proposals.

Unofficially it was pointed out today that the B.C. delegation does not expect to get these important questions straightened out immediately or within a few weeks.

When the provinces are called together they expect to see matters of common concern to all taken up at the start and settled to the mutual satisfaction of everyone. Then the conference would adjourn after appointing contact committees for the individual problems of the provinces for settlement at a future date.

HEPBURN HAS PLANS

Toronto, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Premier Hespburn said today he hopes Prime Minister-elect Mackenzie King will call an early conference of provincial premiers so the decks may be cleared for the fall session of the Ontario Legislature.

He fully intends calling a session late this year.

Ontario will ask Mr. King to collect Ontario's taxes through the federal income tax machinery, Mr. Hespburn said.

Another thing Mr. King will be called upon to do, Mr. Hespburn said, is to call the Chortley Park residence of the Ontario Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Hespburn would not say the government had altered its announced intention of withholding funds for maintenance of Government House after this month.

"I have to have a talk with Mr. King about it first," he said.

Edmonton, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Accepting an invitation which he received Wednesday night from Mr. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader and next Premier, Albert Abgary will attend a Dominion-Provincial conference at Ottawa next month.

Some South Wales Coal Pit Men Return to Surface; Others Stubbornly Stay Below, on Threat of Closing Mines Being Heard

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 17.—The "stay down" miners' strike in the coal villages, punctuated by fights above and below the surface, began losing some of its force to-day as many strikers deserted their dark ports and came up to join wives and comrades keeping vigil at the pithead.

The executive council of the Miners' Federation recommended yesterday evening that all strikers return to work.

However, hundreds of men remained stubbornly underground, and the general walkout was estimated to have involved more than 10,000 men.

For more than 100 hours the "stay down" strikers have waited hundreds of feet below the surface for word the operators would discharge the non-united miners from the pithead.

The decision of miners' leaders to call off the "stay down" walkout followed owners' threats to close some of the pits for an indefinite period unless the miners came up and opened negotiations.

To-day's events followed a bloody battle yesterday in which "stay down" strikers fought with rival workers 800 feet underground and strikers' women supporters battled police at the pithead.

The fierce underground fight took place in Trevelyan pit, Glamorgan-shire. Men were sent below to rout the "stay-downs," part of the 2,400 striking miners who refuse to come to the surface until owners discharged workers not enrolled in the South Wales Miners' Federation.

The "stay-downs" resisted the invaders, but forty of them were herded into the cage and brought out, cut and bruised, to the top.

Their appearance whipped thousands of their sympathizers into action. They assaulted the police with sticks and stones and some of them carried the disorder into Trevelyan village.

The Italian push, under the command of Gen. Rudolfo Graziani, is being covered by tanks and airplanes and has been conducted close to the frontier in order to gain control of the cases used jointly by the native tribes roaming both sides of the frontier.

ITALIAN DENIAL

Rome, Oct. 17.—Official sources flatly denied to-day a report that Italians had clashed with troops of the British camel corps in British Somaliland, inflicting casualties.

Officials termed the report "absurd and absolutely false." A government spokesman repeated his assertion of yesterday that Italy knows where her military forces are.

ADDIS ABABA SKEPTICAL

His Majesty continued: "It is plain England perceives peace cannot be reached at the price of humiliation of another member of the League or by the partitioning of land."

"I am sure the British, with their traditional fairness, will see justice triumphs in the end."

The Emperor to-day reinstated Ded-jamatch Fita Oursi, former Minister of War and a brilliant general who was exiled to Arusi in 1933 because of intractability.

The Emperor plans to place him in command of a large army.

FORCED TO WORK

Government officials stated Ethiopians who have escaped from Tigre province, which has been occupied by Gen. de Bono's forces, said Ethiopian men, women and even children were being compelled by their conquerors to work like slaves on road construction.

The communiqué stated:

"Informed persons say grave differences of opinion exist between Mussolini and his general staff in Italy."

Mussolini is most displeased with the stagnation of military operations around Addis, seriously affecting the prestige of the Italian army."

"The King of Italy is reported to have intervened in order to terminate the dispute."

The communiqué continues:

"Mussolini is now asserted, among strated violently with General de Bono, ever threatening to remove him, whereupon the general is reported to have resigned, saying that owing to topographical difficulties, and the determined resistance of the Ethiopians, the morale of the Italians had been lowered and he would not assume the responsibility of launching an adventure leading to disaster."

ANIMALS SEIZED

Ethiopians from Tigre province reported that their animals have been seized for the Italian army and a famine of the population is considered inevitable. Ethiopians in the capital commented indignantly: "So that is the way Mussolini expects to win away the Tigreans from their loyalty to the Emperor."

Italy Adds To

Home Defences

Tension at Rome Grows With Fear of Sudden Italian Flare-up

Rome, Oct. 17.—Italy directed attention to its home defences to-day as informed sources expressed concern over relations with the League of Nations, and Great Britain in particular.

At force and non-committed-officers of the class of 1906 men born in that year were called out.

Officials of the ministries of corporations, agriculture, finance, communications and merchant marine, conferred on detailed measures for facing the food supplies situation, in case League sanctions are applied, and for defence against nations putting sanctions into practice.

Pessimism replaced the earlier optimism as the dominant mood in the capital political quarters. Informed sources said frankly they were worried lest the tension mounting between Britain and Italy would crystallize with unforeseen rapidity.

To Britain

Anglo-French relations are on the verge of troubled seas. Behind the official British insistence that co-operation with France remains complete there is deep concern over what is termed Laval's hesitancy in applying sanctions against Italy.

In the League Assembly Laval was definite that France stood behind the covenant and would not attempt to evade her obligations. But now the time of test has come Laval, it is claimed, is reluctant to apply any sanctions stronger than formal sanctions which would be ineffective in restoring peace.

British attitude toward continental obligations and British support of the League system of collective security have always strongly stressed the "collective," it risks were to be borne they must be borne by all.

NEW ORIENTATION

If collective action is so weak as to be ineffective in restoring peace, then a new orientation of the British foreign policy may be expected with a watering down of continental obligations assumed under the League covenant and the Locarno treaties.

"It is high time," says The London News Chronicle in an editorial to-day, "that France should be told plainly that unless full support is given by the French government to the League, the British government will have to consider all foreign commitments, including, of course, those in which France is specially interested."

"The time has come," echoes The London Daily Herald, "for the plainest of plain speaking to Laval and the French government. The whole future of France is bound up with the League. If the League collapses the plight of France will become desperate."

ASSURANCES NEEDED

Before withdrawing any of her additional forces in the Mediterranean Britain wants unmistakable assurances from France and definite action by Italy. From France she is seeking firm assurance of her readiness to fulfill her obligations under article 16 of the covenant. From Italy she wants:

1. Termination of the threatening attitude adopted toward Britain by the inspired Italian press;

2. Termination of pressure on Egypt applied by the heavily increased Italian forces in Libya.

Reduction of British naval strength in the Mediterranean, the Canadian Press has been informed, can only be brought about by a change in the political temperature and definite approval of the existing danger.

ITALY'S POSITION

Rome, Oct. 17 (Associated Press).—Italy to-day watched the peace efforts of Premier Laval of France, resolved to keep out of whatever negotiations there may be.

"We cannot talk under British pressure," a government spokesman explained, "Britain has a dagger at our throat with her fleet in the Mediterranean and her sponsorship of sanctions at Geneva."

Military progress in East Africa is slow, it was officially explained, because the Italians are advancing cautiously.

"This isn't a raid," an official source said. "We are building roads and in effect doing our work of colonization as we go."

Woman's Death

Sentence Appealed

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 17.—Appeal of the death sentence imposed on Mrs. Elizabeth Tilford for the poisoning of her husband, Tyrrell Tilford, last March, has been filed by Frank Regan of Toronto, associate defence counsel.

The appeal is based, largely on the claim of the trial judge, Mr. Justice A. C. Kingston, in his charge the jury failed to include numerous points of evidence favorable to the accused.

Ontario Commissioner Tells of Surprise Audits of Securities Issues

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Ontario Securities Commissioner John M. Godfrey, K.C., yesterday said "surprise audits" conducted by his office had revealed that little money received from the public for sale of shares and units had been used in the development of properties.

In one case, he said, shares amounting to $4,195 were sold to the public. With the exception of $200 paid for surveying claims, all this money had gone into the pockets of the security issuer. The same organization also sold units in a syndicate amounting to $1,900. The company received $600 and the salesman $1,300.

The registration of this security issuer had been cancelled and in future he would not be allowed to operate, Mr. Godfrey said.

In another case shares worth $15,554 were sold. The promoters received $14,000 and only $1,400 was spent on property development, and this amount was the fee paid the geologist. This registration had been cancelled also and the issuer would never operate again.

AGED MISSING MAN IS FOUND

Associated Press

Mineral, Calif., Oct. 17.—Suffering from hunger and exposure but otherwise unharmed, Amos J. Cruickshank, seventy-year-old Santa Ana banker, was found at the McGowan Lake Camp, eight miles north of here, by forest rangers yesterday.

Cruickshank, last seen Sunday morning in the mountain wilds near Lassen Volcanic National Park while hunting with friends, had found his way back to the camp after traversing many miles of rugged, snow-bound mountain country, reports said.

It was from the McGowan Camp that he first disappeared.

NEW ZEALAND CRUISER SERVES

Associated Press

Wellington, N.Z., Oct. 17.—Prime Minister George W. Forbes yesterday announced in Parliament the New Zealand cruiser Diomedes had been detailed for service under the British Admiralty at Great Britain's request.

He trusted, he said, the decision would not give rise to rumors of the Dominion likely would become involved in a "war" because "nothing could be further from the truth."

New Political Party in Alberta

Calgary, Oct. 17.—Alberta, prolific when it comes to new political organizations, will soon see another party rear its head, according to John Hoeninger of Brooks, advocate of one centralized government for the world.

A circular which states the platform of "The Party of the Producers and Workers of the World," says all countries of the world "should come to a mutual agreement and from January 1, 1936, should form a ten-year union under one head and one centralized government for the purposes of establishing and making use of international commerce and trade."

New Governor At Quebec On Nov. 2

Liberal Cabinet, Headed By Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, to Welcome Lord Tweedsmuir

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 17.—Baron Tweedsmuir, Governor-General-designate of Canada, has postponed his departure for Ottawa until October 25. The change was announced yesterday.

He planned originally to sail next Saturday for Canada aboard the liner Empress of Britain. The delay was arranged to allow Liberal Leader Mackenzie King, whose forces triumphed in the general election, to make preliminary cabinet arrangements.

Baron Tweedsmuir, better known as John Buchanan, will sail aboard the liner Duchess of Richmond, according to an announcement made here. The ceremony at the Ancient Capital will include the swearing-in of the new Governor-General.

Suggestion was made that the new Liberal cabinet of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, victorious at the polls, may be sworn in here by the administrator, Sir Lyman P. Duff, in the interim. While no official information was available, this was thought a likelihood.

The usual course will be followed, with the Prime Minister of the day and his ministers journeying to Quebec to welcome the new incumbent of Rideau Hall. Mr. King with his colleagues welcomed Lord Willingdon when he arrived at Quebec in 1926. Mr. Bennett and his ministers went to Halifax to greet Lord Bessborough on his arrival in 1931.

Manitoba State Medicine Plan

Test to Be Made in Selected Area, Says Minister of Health

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—State medicine throughout Manitoba, if an experiment about to be made in a small area proves successful, is envisaged by Hon. I. B. Griffiths, provincial Minister of Health and Public Welfare.

Preparations now were being made by the government to establish a unit area in which a form of state medicine would be tried out, he said yesterday. The ultimate scheme would involve free medical hospital and drug service to individuals, the cost to be borne "probably by the provincial and municipal governments out of taxes."

In the unit area contemplated, said Dr. Griffiths, there would be no change in the present system except that doctors, druggists and hospitals would not send bills to patients. Payment would be taken care of from a common fund provided by the municipal and provincial governments.

CONSUL RESIGNS

Rome, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Gastone del Frate, one of Rome's leading lawyers, has resigned his position as consul-general for Haiti here because of that country's "particularly violent stand" against Italy at Geneva, it was revealed yesterday.

SCOUTS IN AIR FOR ETHIOPIANS

FOR ETHIOPIANS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—J. F. Singleton, chairman of the butler export marketing board, yesterday confirmed Montreal reports that the board had suspended operations. It had been in business since September 20.

During that three weeks the board and its Montreal agencies had exported 4,502,144 pounds of Canadian creamery butter to the United Kingdom. Exports were now being made to Great Britain without loss to the producer, Mr. Singleton said. The board's work was now finished.

Study Causes Of Mental Cases

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Necessity of having the right kind of teacher in the school, as a first essential towards decreasing the number of mental cases in mental hospitals, was emphasized by both Hon. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, and Dr. Harvey Clare of the Home-wood Sanatorium, at the convention of the Canadian Association of Occupational Therapy here.

"Hundreds of boys and girls are being taught that the chief business is to pass examinations," said Dr. Clare yesterday evening. "We should teach them to live free, frank, open lives. It is repression of the emotions and ideas and thoughts that does untold harm."

Dr. Faulkner declared most of the mental cases were preventable. "We should get the right type of teacher in our schools and then co-operate with that teacher 100 per cent," he said. "How often we see a boy whipped at school come home and get the sympathy of his parents. We have passed the buck to one of the poorest paid professions, the Canadian public school teacher," he continued.

"I believe Dr. Duncan McArthur, deputy Ontario Minister of Education, has the right idea—that boys and girls are not going to be made to learn to sing when they should be doing arithmetic. The teacher is going to be a great economic factor in the lessening of the number of cases in our mental institutions," said the minister.

HOUSE BUILDING IN U.S. INCREASES

Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 17.—John W. Watsek Jr., of Chicago, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, predicted yesterday that residential construction expenditure in the United States would double in 1936.

Members of the association's executive committee assembled to plan even lower-cost housing.

Two big objectives of the lumber industry, Watsek said, were production of a $1,000 prefabricated house of wood and greater use of lumber in building arches, supporting structures and radio towers.

"Last year $200,000,000 was spent in residential construction," he said in an interview. "This year $400,000,000 was spent on residences, and it will be at least double that next year."

Textile Trade Changes Watched

British Exporters Interested in Course New Government of Canada Will Follow

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTION Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 17.—With the election of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King the textile trade in England is wondering what action the Liberal Prime Minister will take regarding Canadian customs duties and exchange compensation which Yorkshire manufacturers claim has greatly hindered exports to the Dominion.

No prominent textile manufacturer care to express his views, but it is the general belief Mr. King will be unable to make any very definite move in the matter as he would undoubtedly encounter opposition from Canadian manufacturers.

The Federation of British Industries is also, along general lines, a case for submission to the next Imperial Conference, expected within the next eighteen months.

Egypt Studies Sanctions Plan

Difficulties in Way Makes Future of Ministry Uncertain

By ALBERT W. WILSON Associated Press Foreign Staff

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 17.—The question of joining Great Britain in sanctions against Italy to halt the war in Ethiopia complicated an Egyptian political crisis today.

The future of the stop-gap government of Premier Tewfik Nassim Pasha appeared to rest entirely in the hands of King Fuad, ruler of this northeast African kingdom, once a British protectorate and now nominally independent.

Egypt's juridical and territorial rights and its important commercial and sentimental ties with Italy, extending back to the days of ancient Rome, clearly embarrassed British efforts to persuade Egypt to conform with Britain's policy toward Italy.

Premier Nassim awaited the king's answer to proposals he submitted for an assembly of parties in connection with application of sanctions.

The Premier, who represents no party, accepted office as a national duty after the constitution was abolished and parliament dissolved Dec. 1, 1934.

An authority in closest touch with the Premier said his proposal for the assembly of parties represented the utmost concessions Britain was willing to make to pave the way for a new Anglo-Egyptian treaty in return for active support in sanctions against Italy.

TYPHUS DOCTOR ILL FROM WORK

Dr. R. E. Dyer of Washington Infected By Disease He Is Studying

Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 17.—Dr. R. E. Dyer, whose public health service researches into typhus fever have resulted in notable discoveries, lies ill in the Naval Hospital here for a second time as a result of his studies.

He is suffering from a streptococcus infection of the face. While he was handling guinea pigs, the door of a cage struck him in the face, causing an abrasion which became infected with the germs with which he is always working.

Three years ago Dr. Dyer lay ill at the Naval Hospital for weeks with typhus fever, a disease in which he has been doing original research for five years. His most notable discovery was that the rat is the reservoir for American typhus, and that the disease is spread from rat to rat, and from rats to people, by the bites of the rat flea.

THE SUEZ CANAL

WE ARE TOLD THAT THE 100-MILE Suez Canal has been called "the weakest link in the long chain that binds India to the British Isles." It would appear, from Britain's concentration of ships of war and a wide variety of battling material in the Mediterranean and at other points where the conflict in East Africa is being waged, that Britain herself is under no delusion on the point.

Much has been said about the closing of the Suez Canal. But international finance bobs up immediately this course of action is seriously suggested. A few days ago there took place a meeting in Paris of twenty-one Frenchmen, ten Englishmen, and one Hollander. They are the directors of a famous Egyptian company known as "La Compagnie Universelle du Canal de Suez." These directors of this "weakest link" in the long chain which binds India to the British Isles solemnly noted that within the last eight months 170,000 Italian soldiers and workers had passed through the Canal on their way to the Italian territory of Eritrea. These gentlemen sat back in their chairs, at least, we presume so, and noted with some satisfaction that for the use of the Canal, Rome had paid £600,000—or approximately $3,000,000.

It is pointed out, in a report of this meeting, that "the directors faced two problems. One is always with them; the other new. Their concession, originally granted to Ferdinand de Lesseps for ninety-nine years, with expiry on November 17, 1968. After 'due'—but as yet unstated—compensation has been paid, the Canal will belong to the Egyptian government. They like discussing terms for renewing this concession. The other problem, not to their liking, is a possibility that the League of Nations may order the Canal closed to all Italian shipping following invasion of Ethiopia."

We quote from a special article, written for The Literary Digest, which, in part, reads as follows: "From history's dawn warriors and merchants dreamed of a water-route across the Isthmus of Suez joining Asia and Africa. Egyptian Pharaoh, Persian Dynast, Roman Caesar, and Moslem Calif constructed and reconstructed big ditches across the land-bridge over which the Children of Israel fled from captivity. Al-Mansur, founder of Baghdad, blocked a predecessor's ditch in 770 A.D. to stop supplies to rebellious cities in Arabia. That is what some diplomats at Geneva would like to do now to stop supplies destined for Mussolini's troops in Africa."

"To-day's 100-mile slice through the narrow peninsula was cut by M. de Lesseps, the Frenchman who failed to bisect the Isthmus of Panama in the 'eighties."

"When Said Pasha, a friend of M. de Lesseps, was made the Turkish Sultan's Viceroy of Egypt, the great Frenchman, forty-nine and no engineer, metamorphosed the Canal from dream-stuff to high finance. His concession was dated November 30, 1854."

"Twelve years later, the Sublime Porte, at Constantinople, confirmed the grant, despite Britain's opposition. But several years earlier, on April 25, 1859, M. de Lesseps had scooped out the first shovel-ful of sand."

"On November 17, 1869, the Canal was opened with Oriental fanfare. Eugénie, Empress of the French, with M. de Lesseps as her guest, led a line of sixty-eight ships from Port Said to Suez. 'I have done something for peace and progress,' said M. de Lesseps."

BOURASSA GOES OUT

ONE OF THE CONSPICUOUS CASUAL-ties in the election on Monday was Henri Bourassa, who, off and on, had represented the Liberal Party for thirty-nine years. A grandson of Louis Papineau, the rebel of 1837, he was elected in 1896 in the federal contest which swept Laurier and the Liberal party into office, and his remarkable intellectual powers and brilliance as an orator early appeared to mark him for a high place in the public life of the country. In fact, it was generally predicted that some day he would succeed his great compatriot in the leadership of the Liberal party.

The young Bourassa, however, lacked the calm, far-ranging vision of his chief. Before long he proved to be a lively intransigent, impatient of party restraint, and concerned chiefly with the promotion of Canadian nationalism in Quebec. He split with Sir Wilfrid over Canadian participation in the Boer War, which he insisted was no quarrel of Canada's, and resigned in protest in 1899, only to be re-elected by acclamation the following year. He was returned again in the two following general elections, but withdrew to run in a by-election for the Quebec Legislature. In 1908 he was elected to the Quebec House in two constituencies. In 1925 he returned to the Dominion House of Commons and was re-elected in 1926 and 1930. In the present election it was at first thought that he would have no Liberal opposition, but a candidate emerged and, to the surprise of most outsiders, defeated him.

The split which developed between Laurier and Bourassa over Canada's participation in the Boer War in 1899 widened as time went by. The latter formed a little Nationalist group in the House of Commons between 1907 and 1911, which included Armand Lavergne as his first lieutenant. Lavergne later became a Conservative and was Deputy Speaker in the last House at the time of his death. When the Laurier government proposed the organization of a Canadian navy, Bourassa fought it tooth and nail, and his Nationalist party, which had gained considerable standing in his province, absorbed the Quebec wing of the Conservative party. There then was presented the unique spectacle of the federal Conservative party, as far as Quebec was concerned, opposing all Canadian participation in naval defence, while in Ontario it demanded that Canada should participate more fully than Laurier proposed. The general election of 1911, which throughout the rest of Canada was fought on the issue of reciprocity between Canada and the United States, was contested in Quebec on the naval question, and the fusion of Bourassa Nationalists with federal Conservatives gained some twenty-seven seats in the ancient province for the latter, enough to defeat the Laurier administration. It was no secret at the time that the price paid to Bourassa for his activities by Mr. Borden was the repeal of the Canadian Naval Act of the Laurier administration, and his nomination of the three Quebec ministers who were taken into the Conservative ministry at Ottawa.

As time went by Mr. Bourassa was more restrained in his attitude to public questions. While preserving his independent opinions, as far as party policies were concerned, and remaining unwaveringly true to Canadian nationalism, the burning eloquence of his early days in the House gave way to a detached philosophical treatment of public questions on the few occasions on which he spoke. His exceptional oratorical powers were as marked as ever, but the tone of his speeches had mellowed. No member was listened to with greater attention, and unquestionably by his defeat Parliament will be deprived of one of its most striking personalities.

PIUS XI, WAR AND TRADE

A MONTH OR SO AGO, POPE PIUS XI gave an interview to Edward Price Bell, who, for many years, including the period of the Great War, was the London correspondent of The Chicago Daily News. In that interview the Pope issued a warning to all nations against the "murder and suicide" of provoking war—and intimated that "hard and selfish nationalism" should be ruled out as political and economic madness.

"The only salutary cure," says Pope Pius, as quoted by Mr. Bell, "is a reform of Christian morals." There are many of the Roman Catholic faith in Victoria, of course, who will remember the famous encyclical of Leo XIII, which has been described as "immortal in the history of the Popes." It was entitled Rerum Novarum—which implies the application of new methods of dealing with changing circumstances.

Mr. Bell's interview with Pope Pius XI, however, conveys a much more significant message to the world at large than it may appear on the surface. In a few words it is a condemnation of war and an indictment of the sort of "political economy" which resulted in the creation of a rich and privileged few on the one hand, and an impoverished mass on the other."

To quote Mr. Bell further on this point: "This demand Pius XI reiterates and reinforces in many an incoherent passage, speaking judicially, impartially—as becomes his great office: appealing for rationality and equity among the three indispensable entities of industry—capital, management, and labor. And the most considerably to be treated of these, in his feeling, is labor."

The Canadian farmers want markets, but they have shown that their votes are not on the market. The Canadian people evidently prefer the "hand of the physician," prescribed by Mr. King, to the club advocated by Mr. Bennett.

There will be no more government by order-in-council, blank cheques and other bureaucratic methods of administration at Ottawa. The House of Commons has come into its own again with a vengeance.

Out of 172 seats east of the Great Lakes the Liberals won 138. That is to say, if all of the 72 seats west of the Great Lakes as far as the Pacific Ocean had gone against the Liberals, Mr. King would still have had a majority.

CARE AND PLEASURE

Care has honors to bestow,
Pride and self-respect,
And the right to come and go
Always head erect.

Care has worthwhile things to give
Such as wealth and fame
And, what may be the longer live,
Health and sturdy frame.

Care, with all its stern commands,
Offers these in trade:
Knowledge and the skillful hands
With which things are made.

Pleasure, much more popular,
Offers hours of fun,
But its friends no better are
When the sport is done.

Pleasure very seldom makes
Any lasting gift,
Those who seek it, it forsakes,
Leaving them to drift.

Pleasure leaves men tired and worn
Often at the end,
And since burdens must be borne
Care's the better friend.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

GONE FAST ENOUGH

The Hamilton Herald

Now that he has succeeded, there is no need to go on. Sir Malcolm Campbell is a great sport, perhaps the greatest racing motorist the world has seen, but he is many other things besides. He was a pilot in the Great War and he possesses technical ability of no mean order. Quite apart from the fact that Sir Malcolm deserves to live to a happy old age, it would be a pity to throw away his natural abilities. There are younger men who will go racing with death in Utah or at Dayton.

PRAYER FOR PEACE

The Boston Christian Science Monitor

The true prayer for peace is a prayer of faith in the possibility of war. It is a prayer of love for all mankind, free from recrimination and from thoughts of racial or national superiority. It is a prayer which recognizes God as the Father of all men and therefore as concerned with the welfare of one nation as with the welfare of another. "It is a prayer in which the recognition of the Fatherhood of one God becomes so plain that the brotherhood of men is thereby established in human consciousness in place of the false and un-Christian beliefs which would scourge the world again with war. A prayer of hope, of humility, of love, on the lips and in the hearts of all peoples must counteract the thoughts of dread, of pride, and of hate. Neither shall they learn war any more."

FLY-BY-KNIGHTS

THERE WERE casualties in the federal election which a hard-hearted public seems to have overlooked altogether. I mean, of course, the people who were going to get titles in Canada, the unborn baronets who never will be born. There must be thousands of deserving souls who had looked forward to crowning their obscure careers with one flash of prominence, with a baronetcy or at least a knighthood of second or third class. Now, alas, they will go obscure to their graves. The great services which would have entitled them to nobility under a former government will not be recognized. They will never be heard of by the public. They will end their days as simple Masters like you and me.

You may be sure that all the prospective baronets and knights of second class voted for the Bennett government, which probably accounted for the majority of its vote in most places, but, alas, it wasn't enough. The majority of Canadians created by the Bennett government, they won't ever get any.

But still more intriguing is the position of the knights recently created by the Bennett government. Some of them may congratulate themselves that they got under the wire before the Canadian people could stop them, and picked off titles while the electorate's back was turned for the moment.

But surely this must be a rather odd comfort. Titles are supposed to be a public recognition of merit. Now these unfortunate gentlemen find that the public doesn't want to recognize them in that fashion at all. They are doomed to go through life as a sort of temporary nobility of the depression, scarcely a year old, without the play of knights who had their titles patterned to them through a back door in the darkness.

Perhaps when Parliament abolishes titles again and their countrymen indicate that they don't want a Bennett back-alley nobility or any other sort of titles, these Canadians will relinquish their titles and become plain masters again. Perhaps not.

MICKEY

A CURIOUS LITTLE ITEM in this paper the other night reported that New York was fairly crawling with cocktail parties for the married Miss Joan Crawford and Mr. Fanchot T. who, by the way, succeeded in getting on the front page of most Canadian papers on election day.

At the same time that Miss Crawford and Mr. T. were being lavishly entertained and congratulated on one of those Hollywood marriages that are made in heaven, a party was given for Mickey Mouse, another eminent actor. Just how Mickey was to get off the screen and assume a third dimension and eat at this banquet is not recorded, but anyway, where eighty people were invited to Mickey's banquet, only eight turned up, the dispatch says.

This shows you that New York has no sense of discrimination among public characters for Mickey Mouse is a far greater actor than Mr. T. and his girl, Miss Joan, appeals to millions of people of all races and colors, to whom Miss Crawford has only the appeal, as the magazine Time has said, of a cold turkey.

Mickey, and the animated cartoons in which he pioneered, is the supreme achievement of Hollywood, probably America's greatest historic contribution to art, an authentic new thing in the world and the finest satire on society since Swift and Hogarth.

Mr. T. and Miss Crawford, with great respect, are not a historic contribution to art, they are not an authentic new thing in the world, though it might be argued that their

FELLOWSHIP
To the Editor:—With interest I listened to the Dean's sermon on Sunday in which he mentioned fellowship meetings held each Wednesday in the Memorial Hall.

I was wondering if these meetings did any good, and if the people who really needed this fellowship medicine in their hearts ever attend. We see and hear of many selfish people who go to church and young people's societies. How many that have much in the way of money and cars, etc., think it would make some other person happy if they asked the ones who really needed it, to go here and there in their cars, to place they were otherwise have to stay away from.

How many of the A.Y. members of the churches who have cars, think to include others less fortunate in their good times, and see that they share the same opportunities they themselves have? How many young people are going to the convention this week at Vancouver realizing that others less fortunate would like to go, others who are not even lucky enough to

SUCCESSFUL POET

ALSO FROM NEW YORK it is reported that huge crowds assembled to see the opening movie performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which was written by a well-known British journalist some time ago. Crowds packed the theatre, but larger crowds packed the streets to see, not Shakespeare's play, but a lot of movie actors and actresses in person who, at the moment, are better known to most Americans than the writing gentleman from Stratford.

Anyway, it seems that the movies have done a fine job on "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and given to its airy nothings a permanent home and habitation in celluloid. But the criticism was at once raised by some New York critics that Hollywood had made the picture simply for commercial purposes, to create a profit for itself—a thing one doesn't do with Shakespeare. The plays of Shakespeare, it is argued, should be above that profit motive which is the curse of modern society.

What would old Will have thought about that? He wrote "A Midsummer Night's Dream" simply for profit, for that he could get paid by the penny for the plays he was running the dismal playhouses of London. So far as one can discover, he wrote nearly everything for the same purpose. Fifth-rate amateurs might write for the joy of writing or to be acclaimed by history. Shakespeare, the old professional, wrote to eat and he ate well. He amassed a substantial fortune from his journalism and retired into the country like any successful pork butcher or railway magnate.

If he could be here to-day, you would probably find him in Hollywood turning out movies which, for startling effects, for thrilling moments, for rough spots and sex appeal, would make Mr. De Mille look like a pale piker. And one thinks of him attending the opening night of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on Broadway in a magnificent limousine, attired in immaculate evening dress, smoking a long, fat cigar and full of an excellent dinner with the best imported wines.

One fancies him watching the reaction of the crowd to his immortal phantasies, and saying to one of his assistants: "This high-class, arty stuff is all right once in a while but if we're going to make any money we'll have to turn out something next with plenty of blood and thunder in it, and more sex. I have an idea for a melodrama of the old sort, fairly reeking with gore and some adultery that will probably get by the censor if we're lucky. I think I'll call it 'Hamlet.' I'll bet you it grosses two millions if we do it in color."

America's second best playwright, has just written down as his credo in The New York Times:

"The stage is still a cathedral, but just now a journalistic one, dominated by those who wish to offer something immediate about our political, social or economic life. Like every other existing condition it gives the illusion of permanence, but it will change. An age of reason will be followed once more by an age of faith in things unseen. The cathedral will then house the mysteries again, along with the jugglers and the vendors of rose-colored spectacles. What faith men will then have, when they have lost their certainty of salvation through laboratory work, I don't know, having myself only a faith that men will have a faith. But that it will involve a desire for poetry after our starvation diet of prose I have no doubt.

"Men have not been changed by the invention of airplanes and the radio. They are still alone and frightened, holding their chance tenure of life in utter isolation in this desolate region of revolving fires. Science may answer a few necessary questions for them, but in the end science itself is obliged to say that the fact is created by the spirit, not spirit by the fact. Our leading scientists are already coming to this conclusion, rather reluctantly and with some surprise.

This is an important idea. It saves me thinking up one and is a lot better than any I could think up, anyway.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

(From The Times Files)

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—Philadelphia Athletics took the first game of the world's series to-day when they defeated the Chicago Cubs 4 to 1 on the home ground of the former.

Regarding a rumor to the effect that the B.C. Electric Railway Company had abandoned the proposed extension of its lines through the Spanish district, the local manager, A. T. Goward, stated to The Times to-day that there was no change in the situation as previously reported. The matter was under consideration by the company and it was possible that an agreement would be reached between the railroad and the residents.

An important real estate deal was completed this morning whereby the business block on Government Street, occupied by the Chalmers Mitchell Co., manufacturing jewelers, was transferred to the Watson Bros. of Calgary.

New York, Oct. 17.—Bulwarked with heavy plank to protect them from the high seas of the Straits of Magellan, the liners Yale and Harvard steamed out of New York harbor to-day on their 15,000 mile voyage to San Francisco.

James Thomson, local manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, who has returned from his annual trip of inspection to the company's far Indian posts, stated to The Times to-day that next year would see the end of steamboat navigation on the Skeena River. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railroad is now almost completed to Cooper River, and Mr. Thomson stated that the line should be in operation as far as Hazelton by the spring of 1912.

LITTLE THEATRE OPENS SEASON

Mystery Play Smartly Presented; New Home in Empire Theatre Appreciated

The Victoria Little Theatre Association yesterday evening got away to a good start on its 1935-1936 season.

The factors in this initial success were: First, a smart play, smartly played by a cast of six; second, the use of the reorganised Empire Theatre, which gave the producers the long-wanted advantage of being able to work with and on a full-sized stage with complete electrical equipment, and the audience the privilege of occupying reasonably comfortable seats in a well arranged house, instead of sitting on hard, movable chairs in a flat hall as required during previous seasons.

A much-pleased audience filled the boxes as well as the gallery and main floor.

As for the mystery play itself, the London and New York success, "The Minute Aids," by Anthony Armstrong. A murder has been committed in a Bloomsbury, London, apartment. Two police, an important detective-inspector and his somewhat looked-down-upon detective sergeant, do some heavy thinking through a whole act and some third-degreed, trying to solve the mystery, following with police logic clue threads to their ends.

The exciting aspect of all this to the audience is in the fact that the audience has been in on the murder—has seen it committed twice, once in a dream in the first act and then actually in the second act. Such is the logic and the thoroughness of the police officials, that after questioning of four suspects and being outwitted, they have to argue to the murderer that he is innocent.

Harry A. Davis was the detective-inspector and Art H. Kerr the detective-sergeant. They were both subtle in their interpretations of the characters—the inspector being of the old pipe-smoking school, rather scornful of the brains of the younger cigarette-smoking sergeant, who had not risen in the force, but had come with the scorned school teachers into the force. The fine humor of the situation is heightened by Mr. Kerr's sergeant being equally scornful of the brains of his superior. The sergeant, being inferior in rank, cannot say too much, but the way Mr. Kerr uses his eyes and his expressions are more eloquent than words.

The audience in the end does not mind seeing the murderer outwit the police, as the murdered man, who in the first scene had been an ardent lover, turned out to be a villain of the deepest dye, a betrayer of girls to the white slave trade of South America.

William Lambert plays the murdered love-maker, Sevilla, smoothly. Dan MacDonald was his man servant and so filled his role that at the conclusion of his grilling by the police the audience roared him an outburst of applause. Bert Bailey, Derwent, the honest lover, who saves the girl from her own folly by shooting, Sevilla, got pretty much out of the role all there was in it. And that was quite a bit, because Derwent with sense of guilt had to be convincing in his fencing with the police officers. Mr. Bailey handled the role so that the audience felt with him in his moment of killing, and also when he had close calls while deceiving the police. This brought him also an outburst of applause from the house. H. F. Hewett was the important Sir Miles Standing. Charles A. Gibbard appeared for a flash as a foreign-accent restaurant keeper.

CENTRE OF INTEREST

The feminine interest was provided by Noel Cusack as Betty Findon. She was the centre of interest all through the action, first as the girl who would go anywhere with her lover, but sometimes wavers, then distraught when he is killed, and finally sensing her debt to the jealous Derwent who had saved her only by murder. Miss Cusack is always very real and understanding in her interpretations, with a wide range of emotional command, and a sense of the value of never overplaying. She used her talents to good effect yesterday evening. She was appealing as she was ready to give herself to her lover in the first act and moving in her tears as she was examined by the police. The audience applauded her and then at the final curtain filled her arms with bouquets of flowers.

Leslie F. Lamb directed the production with Ann Breton as assistant director. The permanent stage set of a modern, high-priced London apartment, showed what the members of the Little Theatre can do now that they have uncramped theatre facilities. Boyd MacGill was responsible for the art work; Audrey Wood for the properties. Leo Marston for the stage carpentering and Gordon Fotts for the lighting.

The only detracting feature lay in the failure of the stage manager to put out all side-wing lights and those from behind the box curtains during the black-outs. As a result of this failure the shadowy forms of dead men and others were seen to be rushing around the dim stage, destroying the illusion.

HYDRO BOND INTEREST CUT

Quebec Companies Offer Cheaper Power to Ontario; Hepburn Comments

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 17.—Bondholders of Maclean, Quebec Power, Gattineau, Beauharnois and Ottawa Valley companies yesterday endorsed a plan for refunding aggregate bonds outstanding at a lower interest rate, with government guarantees.

The plan also provides means whereby the Ontario Hydro Commission would be able to accept additional power as stipulated in contracts and distribute it to farmers of Ontario at not more than 94 per horsepower, apart from the cost of building transmission and distribution lines.

The proposal was outlined by I. E. Weldon, K.C., on behalf of the bondholders' committee. He said the aggregate of outstanding bonds of the four companies whose contracts with Ontario were threatened with cancellation was $160,000,000, bearing an average interest rate of 5.27 per cent.

GUARANTEE ASKED
The committee proposed these issues be refunded by the companies with a coupon rate of 3.27 per cent, interest to be guaranteed by the governments of Quebec, Ontario and the Dominion.

City Impresses U.S. Visitors

Prominent Legislative Party Pleased With Reception in Victoria

From the tenor of remarks by members of the U.S. Vice-President's party which visited Victoria yesterday, the city will receive publicity of inestimable value from the brief stop off here.

To a man the visitors were lavish in their praise of Victoria. Senators and congressmen from the far south and eastern states said they had no idea such a beautiful city existed in the Canadian northwest.

From the general appearance and layout of the city's buildings some of them estimated Victoria must have a population of at least 200,000 to support them, and were astounded to learn that it was closer to 60,000.

The beautiful flowers in private gardens, despite the lateness of the season, made a distinct impression.

Members of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce provided their cars to drive the visitors around, and from such vantage points as Mount Tolmie they were greatly impressed.

The entertainment of the vice-presidential party was initiated in the first place by George I. Warren, executive secretary of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Warren got in touch with Washington, D.C., when he learned the party would stop here arranged for the Vice-President to attend the local function, and then communicated with the shipowners to have the President's Grant held over for an hour or two here.

Mr. Warren then enlisted the aid of the provincial government and the civic authorities in preparing the reception.

When the boat docked here, the Chamber of Commerce members under W. T. Straith and Les Cabore, the respective president of the senior and junior bodies, were on hand to offer transportation.

A hour's drive around the city preceded the informal banquet at the Empress Hotel, where a spirit of international friendship and goodwill was plainly in evidence.

When they departed at 9 o'clock, many of the visitors promised to return to Victoria at the earliest opportunity.

the present and the proposed interest rates would be rebated to the Hydro Commission in the form of a lower contract price per horsepower of power taken from the companies. This would mean an average rate per horsepower of $10.23, Mr. Weldon said.

He explained the companies would have an expense exactly equal to that at present on account of bond interest, but they would have the advantage of being able to dispose of their surplus power to the full extent of existing contracts.

NEW ORGANIZATION

This power, it is proposed, would be distributed to Ontario farmers at a cost of exceeding 94 per horsepower. To this end the bondholders' committee will endeavor to create an organization of farmers, especially in eastern Ontario, the meeting decided. Such an organization would support the plan and urge its acceptance on the government and the companies.

The proposal would require outstanding bonds to about their par value, the committee believed, and would save them from suffering any capital loss. It was declared farmers would get the cheapest rural power in the world and many men would be given employment in construction of power lines.

An enlarged committee was authorized to open negotiations at once with the companies, the governments involved, and the Hydro Commission of Ontario. It is to report at a further general meeting of bondholders.

TO-WEATHER STORM

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 17.—It is a move in the right direction, Premier Hepburn of Ontario said of the action of bondholders of the four Quebec power companies in endorsing a plan for refunding aggregate bonds outstanding at a lower interest rate.

"If they can convert their bonds they will weather the storm," he said of the bondholders. "It will mean none of the companies will be in a condition of insolvency."

"Following the change in cycles of the electrical current put out by Chateaux Falls we can now put enough twenty-five-cycle power through our converters to satisfy the needs of eastern Ontario—that was the stumbling block."

Mr. Hepburn declined to discuss what action would be taken regarding proclamation of the Ontario bill invalidating contracts with the companies.

Allege Golfers' Checks Worthless

Indianapolis, Oct. 17.—County Prosecutor Herbert Spencer announced yesterday evening that Robert Harlow, tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, has alleged that cheques awarded in the recent Indianapolis $5,000 open tournament were worthless. The Indiana department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, sponsored the tournament which ended here October 6.

Spencer said Harlow informed him that a $1,000 cheque given Al Epineaux, first place winner, came back marked "no funds," and that Harlow was here to see that Epineaux and the other professionals obtained their money.

Jack Pettit of Indianapolis, who managed the tournament for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, could not be reached for comment.

This Shows WHY You Get Such Fast Relief from "ASPIRIN"

WHY "ASPIRIN" WORKS SO FAST

Drop an "Aspirin" Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom of the glass it has started to disintegrate. What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

Quick Relief for Headaches, Neuritis, Rheumatic Pains

The old adage says, "what you see you believe." So the nurse, pictured above, shows you two actual photographs to prove the quick action of "ASPIRIN."

Look at them, and you will see one reason why Scientists rate "ASPIRIN" among the fastest agents, now known or ever known, for the relief of headaches, neuritis, neuralgia and rheumatic pains.

You'll see that an "Aspirin" tablet, dropped into a glass of water, starts to disintegrate, or dissolve, before it hits the bottom of the glass. Hence, it is ready to go to work almost instantly you take one. For what happens in that glass happens in your stomach.

HEAR BISHOP ON WAR SITUATION

An enjoyable discussion of the Italo-Ethiopian question was given by Bishop McDonald to the members of the Catholic Young People's Club at the business meeting recently.

Answering several questions put to him by his listeners, the Bishop presented new views on the war. The speaker related humorous incidents arising out of the mingling of ancient and modern customs. England's difficult role of peace-maker was touched upon, and that of the embarrassing position of Italy's neighbors as regards the sanctions imposed by the League of Nations.

Bishop McDonald closed his informal address with the hope that the nations could effect peace before many more human lives were lost.

It was decided at the business meeting to hold a banquet on November 7, for members and their friends. All those interested are asked to get in touch with the convenor, Al Dunnett.

Friends of the Rev. Fr. Gaudette will be pleased to know he is well on his feet, recovering, and is now permitted to receive visitors.

The opening dance of the fall season will be held to-night at the K. of C. Hall on Government Street. Tickets may still be obtained from club members. The dance committee, under John Grant and Cal Collins, promises a novel entertainment. The refreshments are being attended to by the Misses Teresa Doherty and Bernadette Colbert.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

ENGINEER—THE REVOLUTION

West Point and many of the other fortifications along the Hudson are products of the engineering genius of a Polish patriot. He was Tadeusz Kosciuszko, who on Oct. 13, 1793, was made a U.S. citizen by act of Congress, was brevetted a brigadier-general, was made a member of the Order of Cincinnati, and voted thanks.

Born to wealth and prominence, the adventurous Kosciuszko came to America and volunteered for service in the Revolution. His brilliance as a military engineer won favor with General Washington.

After the war, he returned to Poland and there joined in the Revolution of 1791, that made Poland a limited monarchy. He was taken prisoner by the Russians and released in 1796, when he revisited America.

Both Poland and the United States honor Kosciuszko in stamps. The U.S. issue of 1933, on the 150th anniversary of his citizenship, pictures his statue in Lafayette Park, Washington.

Company Head Explains Speech

M. J. O'Brien Says Ontario
Machinery Firm Must Have Tariff Protection

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—M. J. O'Brien, executive of the Renfrew Machinery Company, yesterday said he had been misunderstood in an election speech in which he said his company's plant would be closed if a Liberal government was elected.

Mr. O'Brien added the plant would remain in operation unless tariff protection was removed on cream separators. If the tariff is removed, he said, "we simply cannot carry on. That is all."

Mr. O'Brien's speech drew from Liberal Leader King the statement that if the plant should be closed the government would assume control and see it continued to run.

Sunday School Is Dedicated

Mrs. L. Winkel Officiates at Cornerstone Laying of Lake Hill Building

The new site of the Lake Hill Mission Sunday school, at the corner of Falmouth Road and Savannah Street, was officially dedicated yesterday afternoon before between 300 and 400 persons.

Mrs. L. Winkel, one of the oldest members of the congregation and a teacher in the Sunday school for thirty years, officiated at the ceremony, which was presided over by C. H. Hadland, superintendent.

Greetings were extended from visiting ministers who took part in the dedicatory service. The first portion of the programme was held in the present Sunday school, after which the congregation moved to the new location for the laying of the cornerstone.

Rev. C. G. MacKenzie, president, extended the best wishes of the Victoria Ministerial Association, after his introduction by Leonard Blackmore, assistant superintendent.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. James Hood of Belmont Avenue United Church, who introduced Mrs. Winkel, the pioneer teacher, presiding at the ceremony.

Rev. Dr. Clem Davies was the guest speaker, his subject being "A New Beginning." He gave wise counsel and an encouraging message to the congregation which has made possible the construction of the new building through voluntary contributions.

The benediction was given by Rev. P. W. McKinnon of Douglas Street Baptist Church.

The new mission is about half completed. It will be the one story high and will shortly be ready for occupation.

ETHIOPIANS TRAIN WITH BAYONETS

Two of Emperor Haile Selassie's soldiers were engaging in bayonet practice when the above picture was taken. Many of the units in the Ethiopian army were not so well equipped as these men, but now, as a result of the League of Nations having lifted the arms embargo from Ethiopia, large numbers of modern rifles and supplies of munitions are reported to be reaching the Emperor's soldiers in the field. Dispatches two days ago told of a big shipment arriving by rail from Djibouti, port on the coast of French Somaliland.

RESTRICT USE OF AUDITORIUMS

Saanich School Board
Adopts Policy to Limit
Renting of School Halls

Owing to the increasing of fire hazards by indiscriminate renting and the competition created with other halls, the Saanich School Board yesterday evening adopted a policy prohibiting the renting of school auditoriums for other than school activities and strictly educational meetings.

The trustees refused applications from the Esquimaux Club and the 20th Century Young Liberals Club of Saanich to use the Mount View High School auditorium.

The former group sought use of the hall for winter dances which were held regularly last year.

The board did not approve of treatment of the hall in the past and of certain things which had been brought to the trustees' attention while these affairs were in progress. It was also pointed out the renting of the hall placed the school board in competition with other hall owners.

PACIFIC WAR DANGER SEEN

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 17.—Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, told the international convention of Disciples of Christ yesterday that "when the United States government reaches the place where it can no longer give money to the unemployed then there will be a war to crush the workingmen of Japan, with whom American workmen cannot compete."

Dr. Holt told the convention delegates that he feared of war prevalent on both sides of the Pacific would make a conflict easy to start.

SPEAKER PREDICTS SPLIT IN LEAGUE

A split in the present League of Nations over the practical application of sanctions against Italy, which would ultimately result in the formation of a new league, united in the principles of the kingdom of God, was predicted by J. S. Eason, editor and lecturer of Vancouver, in an address at the British-Israel Association meeting on Tuesday.

Britain would also take the lead in the new combine, as she had done in the present league, the speaker said. Mr. Eason illustrated his remarks with blackboard sketches, pointing out the symbols of the Great Pyramid which indicated the change.

Catholic Women Review Year of Much Activity

Seven Subdivisions of Diocesan League Raised $4,287 Last Year, Reports Show; Miss Harriet O'Brien Again President

Miss Harriet O'Brien, presiding at the annual diocesan convention of the Catholic Women's League yesterday, characterized the past year as "one of united effort and earnest accomplishment."

The report of Miss Lenore Fletcher as Victoria delegate to Ottawa, was read by Miss Helen Redgrave and received with marked appreciation.

BISHOP COMMENDS WORK

Rt. Rev. J. H. MacDonald, Bishop of Victoria, congratulated the League in his diocese upon their constant and united effort which had made the year's record a possibility. The sum of $4,287 had been realized and expended in all forms of good work, and the Bishop expressed his sincere admiration of the whole-hearted co-operation of each and all subdivisions and wished them even greater success in the future.

He assured the members that much could be accomplished by even a few, where faith was stronger than work alone, and that the forces of evil against Christianity could be checked by principles of sound morality and a true knowledge going hand in hand. He urged the members to devote themselves to study and recommended the formation of study clubs in small groups for the development of constructive thought.

Father Albury, chaplain, spoke on the necessity of organizing, and expressed the hope that each member would bring one more into the League in the coming year. He warned his hearers against the invidious inroads of Communism and urged a united Christian front against this menace.

Rev. Brother Ward, principal of St. Louis College, spoke in kindly commendation and appreciation of the work of the Catholic Women's League. Rev. Father Bradley also was among the guests.

Miss O'Brien was congratulated upon her appointment as national convener of Girl Guides for the Catholic Women's League of Canada. Mrs. W. B. Stockwood, whom she has succeeded in this office, read a splendid paper on "What are Girl Guides?" outlining the principles and ideals which actuate this movement.

REPORTS PRESENTED

Reports of the subdivisions of Port Alberni and of Ladysmith were read by the diocesan secretary, Miss McDonald. The report of Oak Bay subdivision was submitted by Mrs. E. Vernon Thomson; Cobble Hill-Shawnigan subdivision report by Mrs. Windau. Mrs. P. Harris, president of Esquimalt subdivision, gave an excellent account of the activities and the successes of a year's devoted work. Miss Nora O'Connell gave the report of the junior subdivision, Mrs. Blair Reid, president, presented the report of Victoria subdivision.

Madame Griffiths, accompanied by Mrs. Clifford Warr, and Mrs. C. J. C. accompanying herself, sang delightfully.

During the morning session the secretary, Miss McDonald, and treasurer, Mrs. W. McManus, gave their yearly reports. Publicity and press reports were given by Mrs. Ebbes, and a vote of thanks to the local press with appreciation of the courtesy shown by The Times and the Courtesier.

Mrs. McManus reported as convener of organization on visits made to and of the excellent work being done by the upland subdivisions. In reporting for education and study clubs, tribute was paid by Mrs. Ebbes.

Canavan, who stated the results of examinations and successes at musical festivals were gratifying. Study clubs were in formation and a special first Apologizing by Bishop Reid will be available this year in the Parish Hall of St. Andrew's Cathedral on Monday evenings from 8 to 9 o'clock.

SOCIAL WELFARE

Miss O'Brien reported on social welfare, acknowledging the assistance received from St. Vincent de Paul Society in the many cases of need which have arisen. Miss MacDonald reported for Sisters of Service, to which movement the annual contribution from this diocese had been sent. All other national obligations, budget, scholarship, Regina relief fund and per capita have also been met.

As a result of a resolution made at the national convention, the diocesan board will proclaim a special commemoration of the Feast of Our Lady of Good Counsel, patroness of the C.W.L. of Canada, and mass will be celebrated yearly on that day with a general communion of members.

Rev. Father Wood, diocesan chaplain, spoke with knowledge and appreciation of the successful work of the League during the past fifteen years, with special reference to the Esquimalt subdivision.

DIOCESAN BOARD

By acclamation, the following officers were returned for the coming year: President, Miss Harriet O'Brien; first vice-pres., Mrs. P. Harris; second vice-pres., Mrs. J. D. Kissinger; secretary, Miss K. McKay; acting treasurer, Mrs. W. McManus; council, Mrs. McManus, Mrs. A. G. Morry, Miss C. MacKay representing Victoria; Mrs. P. Harris, Mrs. T. Fair, Mrs. M. ## Obypa Club To Give Programme

The weekly meeting of the Obypa took place in the church parlour on Tuesday evening with the president, Miss Jean Smith, in the chair.

The devotional period was taken by Miss Lucy Shaw with the prayer being given by Miss Nancy Hepburn. After a short business discussion, Mrs. Dora Curtis took charge of the meeting and introduced the speakers of the evening. Miss Irish Gaskill gave an interesting account of her recent trip to England, while Miss Jean Smith spoke on her vacation at Ocas Island.

On Friday evening the members are planning to visit the Canadian Bakeries and are asked to meet at the church at 8 o'clock.

Next Tuesday evening the public are invited to spend a social evening with Obypa in the Oak Bay United Schoolroom, at which time a very bright and interesting variety programme will be given, commencing at 8 o'clock.

The following have kindly consented to assist with the programme: Mrs. Ruth Vallant, Chris Miller, Miss Edna Burgess, Bob Patrick, Miss Catherine Craig, Harry Macneil, Mrs. Geraldine Ferrel, Messrs. Margaret and Fullerton and the Sunday school orchestra. Refreshments will be served and a collection taken.

Jiminy felt most uncomfortable. It was awfully funny about the way his mother was forgetting things these days. She never used to forget. Just since they had moved here had she said to the lady at the store that she would love to join the garden club because she had left such a gorgeous garden at the other house. And it wasn't their garden, but the Watson's next door she must have been talking about.

CONFESSION CLEARS AWAY DOUBTS

He loved her so and anyone he loved he hated to be so puzzled about. She seemed to be a different kind of mother from the one he had known so long all that time daddy was out of work. Now she was always telling him not to contradict her.

He happened to be awake when they all came home. He could hear them talking downstairs. His mother was saying, "Alice," she was calling Mrs. Smith "Alice," so she was. "I fibbed about that sofa and about this dress. It has been on my conscience all evening. That sofa was $60 and this dress was my sister Mame's."

"Good for you," came Alice's voice. Then ensued other confidences. Jiminy smiled and went to sleep at once. This was more like it. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

PARENTS' EFFORTS TO DECEIVE BEWILDER THEIR CHILDREN

Mrs. Smith said: "What a lovely sofa, Mrs. Brown," as the two men lifted the new furniture from the van and carried it into the Brown house. "I think it is," remarked Mrs. Brown proudly, "and cheap, too, at a hundred dollars."

Jiminy, who had been tooting around in the grass, screwed up his face and eyed his mother. "Say, mom, it was only $60, wasn't it? I thought you said $60."

His mother smiled indulgently. "No, dear, that was that other green sofa you and I were looking at. Don't you remember?"

Something in his mother's voice warned the child. "Oh, yes, I guess so," he agreed reluctantly. He ran off to play then, but every little while he looked back at his mother. He was quite sure he was right. Why did she want to tell people stories? What was the difference what the old thing cost, anyway?

ANOTHER FALL FROM GRACE

That evening his parents dressed to go out to dinner. The Smiths came over to get them and were standing in the living room when Mrs. Brown came downstairs.

"What a pretty dress," said Mrs. Brown. "I want a black velvet terribly myself."

The Smiths were recent to the community so Mrs. Brown said airily, "It isn't new. I've had it for some time."

"Say, mom," interrupted Jiminy, "wasn't that the one Aunt Jane sent you the other day?"

"Why, darling, no." And then his mother explained something or other about asking her sister for extra velvet she wasn't using to make sofa pillows.

MAORIS ARE FINE PEOPLE

Says Mrs. Allon Peebles in Lecture Before University Women's Club

The many splendid qualities and characteristics of the Maoris were described in vivid fashion in the talk given by Mrs. Allon Peebles before the University Women's Club yesterday evening at the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Peebles was formerly of Christchurch, New Zealand, and her address was based on a knowledge and understanding of these native people, a series of fine pictures supplementing her remarks. She spoke of the origin and history of the Maoris, who had migrated between the tenth and fourteenth centuries from Northern Australia to New Zealand, making the 1,600 miles' journey in open canoes, evidence of their hardihood and adventurous spirit.

The speaker also described their architecture, both domestic and community; their crafts, food, dress, ornaments, games and exercises, with a space specially devoted to a detailed description of the ceremonial of tattooing the final test of a Maori warrior's powers of endurance and capacity to suffer pain. Their magnificent sporting spirit, shown in their generous attitude toward their foes, more than anything else had won for them the admiration of the white population of New Zealand, which accorded them the status of equals in all that pertained to citizenship rights.

Clara Jardine, president of the club, presided, and Mrs. Godson moved the vote of thanks to the speaker. Dr. Wyman Pilcher of the University of British Columbia, formerly of New Zealand, was welcomed, also Miss Rosa of Invercargill, New Zealand.

Temperature of the Gulf Stream ranges from about 62 degrees Fahrenheit in winter to 88 degrees in summer.

An old European superstition is that animals take on the power of speech at Christmas time.

He loved her so and anyone he loved he hated to be so puzzled about. She seemed to be a different kind of mother from the one he had known so long all that time daddy was out of work. Now she was always telling him not to contradict her.

He happened to be awake when they all came home. He could hear them talking downstairs. His mother was saying, "Alice," she was calling Mrs. Smith "Alice," so she was. "I fibbed about that sofa and about this dress. It has been on my conscience all evening. That sofa was $60 and this dress was my sister Mame's."

"Good for you," came Alice's voice. Then ensued other confidences. Jiminy smiled and went to sleep at once. This was more like it. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

WORK IRREGULAR LINES OF FACE INTO OVAL

Besides planning your coiffure to improve the outline of your face, work on your muscles to sculpture them in a smooth oval," advises Dorothy Cocks in her new book, "Help Yourself to Beauty."

"Knead and model your cheeks upward from the chin. Place your thumbs under your jawbone on each side of the chin, and pinch deeply, with thumb and first finger, outward along the jaws to the ears. Pinch away the fat that makes your facial oval too heavy here.

"Use the back of your hand to pat upward against your chin, to break down the fold of fat that settles under your chin and spoils the oval of your face. Good posture, with head back, helps to create a good chin and throat line."

Then Miss Cocks goes on to say that the curve of the forehead into your nose always is an important detail in the modeling of your face. Stray hairs that grow between brows should be tweezed. Cream should be patted on across this space every night. One should remember never to frown, as this often causes faint lines that eventually turn into deep furrows.

Do not forget to cover neck and face with cream before you start any kind of modeling or slapping routine. This way, you run no risk of stretching or irritating your skin.

The Strawberry Jam produced by Royal City is absolutely pure and free from any artificial ingredients and is particularly suitable for individual Strawberry Tarts, made by generously filling the shells with Royal City Brand and topping each one with a dash of whipped cream—so says Frances Dockerill, Royal City Distiller.

Major Hockey Clubs Get Down To Serious Training

THE SPORTS MIRROR

IT HAS BEEN SAID more or less openly for years that Connie Smythe, boss of Toronto Maple Leafs, holds tickets on all the good National Hockey League material in Toronto. Various other N.H.L. managers are supposed to be grinding their teeth in futile rage about the situation. Some of them are represented as needing young players far more than Smythe. It irks them to read in the papers about amateur players around Toronto playing great hockey while Smythe awaits the opportune moment to call in his tickets. They don't like to feel Connie has so much valuable ivory tied up for delivery on demand.

It is not true that the Leafs hold promises, written or verbal, on all the bright young hometown players. It is probably more true that the boys would rather play for Toronto than any other N.H.L. club and that Smythe, who knows a good young one when he sees him, encourages the best of them to stick around. The method of encouragement is Smythe's business. He landed Regis "Pep" Kelly from St. Michael's College juniors as his prize rookie of last year. Kelly was a stunning success from the start and in the N.H.L. playoffs became a local hero by scoring the tying and winning goals for Leafs against Boston Bruins in the fourth game of the series.

Kelly, Red Metz, Art Jackson and Bob Davidson were the cream of that Smythian crop and the chances are Toronto will have a regular Kelly-Metz-Jackson forward line at the start of next month's campaign. The flame-haired, frail Metz is one of the most graceful skaters in the sport. As the saying goes, Smythe has pulled in a few more tickets this fall. He has reached into the amateur grab-bag—his own private Toronto grab-bag—and pulled out Normie Mann, Jimmy Fowler and George Parsons, among the best forwards Toronto has produced in years. It is just possible at least two of them will make the major-league grade right off the bat.

If they do not, the training ground will be Syracuse. Smythe operates an International League team there merely for the purpose of developing talent for his Leafs. It will be chock-full of ambitious youngsters this winter. Other newcomers to the Toronto camp are Normie MacMillan, star winger of Hamilton Tigers, Ontario senior finalists last spring, and John Howard, defenceman from the same team. They, too, will likely spend at least part of the winter at Syracuse.

The Leafs, with George Hainsworth in goal; Horner, Clancy, Day and Hollett on defence and the Conacher-Primeau-Harvey Jackson line to lead the attack, will scarcely be basically youthful. But Mac Millan and Harold Cotton have been trained to make room for youth and Smythe has loads of bright-eyed young men from which to select his supporting cast.

Perhaps they would not be so effective at first on foreign fairways, but on home courses Canadian professionals would hold their own at British pros in other team matches. These might be played in Canada. Lack of outside tournament experience would certainly handicap the Canadian pros on foreign courses. Year-around money players like Paul Runyan, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith and Ed. Dudley are at home on any layout. They make a living shooting courses they never saw before. But Canadians do not get that experience and it is match play against top-notchers abroad this would be a tremendous handicap. For a while, at least, they may confine their international events to Canadian soil.

Anderson believes Canadian professionals are good enough players to accomplish such feats regularly. He would not be surprised if they were invited, perhaps next year, to compete against United States or British pros in other team matches. These might be played in Canada. Lack of outside tournament experience would certainly handicap the Canadian pros on foreign courses. Year-around money players like Paul Runyan, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith and Ed. Dudley are at home on any layout. They make a living shooting courses they never saw before. ## Further Player Deals Announced By Several Clubs

Detroit Red Wings Work Large Squad; Canadiens to Get Lola Couture

TORONTO LEAFS KEEP VETERANS

Detroit, Oct. 17.—Back from New York where he sat in on the "divvying up" of the St. Louis players, Manager Jack Adams today took charge of the ice practices of Detroit Red Wings and Olympics and gave the players a workout at what he called a "mucking."

"Mucking," from the appearance of things, is none other than that old standby "shinny," and the players, particularly the rookies, thrived on the exercise. Three veterans, Marty Barry, Art Givoux and Lorne Duguid, checked in and with their arrival the squad lists only two players, Pete Kelly and Connie King. Barry and Givoux were obtained from Boston Bruins, and Kelly, late of St. Louis, was obtained in a trade for Carl Voss. Duguid and King are Olympic players of last season. Givoux came in from Calgary, by way of Sudbury and Toronto, reaching town in company with Howie Morenz, who was on his way from Montreal to report to the Chicago Black Hawks. Barry, a huge centre player with considerable ability around the nets, played with the New York Americans before going to Boston. He is a product of the Canadian-American League, having performed for the Philadelphia and New Haven clubs. Hec Kilrea, ex-Toronto Maple Leaf winger, signed a contract, while Syd Howe, native Ottawan, is expected to come into the fold at any time.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Montreal Canadiens, it was learned here today, have an option on Lola Couture, St. Boniface, Man., right winger of Chicago Black Hawks, and are likely to exercise it shortly. Canadian players report here today and will entrain for Quebec when training camp opens to-morrow. Missing from last year's team will be Nelson Crutcheff, seriously hurt in an automobile accident recently; Roger Jenkins, defenceman, and Jack Riley, centre, traded to Boston Bruins and Jerry Carson, defenceman, who has retired. Tony Savage is reported to be a holdout. Newcomers will be Art Lesieur from Providence; Walter Buswell, Paul Haynes, Jean Pilon from Boston, and Ervin Frev, Paul Frouin and Henri Lauson, picked up in the shuffle of St. Louis players. A large band of amateurs will go to Quebec to try for places.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Ray Lawson, owner of the London Tecumsehs of the International Hockey League, announced yesterday he was seeking to contract Irvin "Ace" Bailey, former member of Toronto Maple Leafs, as manager of the local team. George Boucher, after agreeing to take over the management of the local club a few days ago, decided to accept the offer of the Springfield team of the Canadian-American League. If Bailey does not want the job, John Ross Roach, another former Toronto Maple Leaf and Detroit Red Wing veteran, will be sounded out regarding the position. Roach was given his unconditional release recently.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Pre-season rumors emanating from the hockey gossip clubs to-day suggested Joe Cattarino, who with Leo Dandurand, controlled the Canadiens hockey club fifteen years until its sale to other interests a few weeks ago, would return to National League hockey as a purchaser of the Ottawa-St. Louis franchise with the idea of operating in Cleveland. There was no comment regarding the rumor by hockey officials here.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Conny Smythe and his right-hand man, Frank Seike, grinned across the head-tables at each other yesterday while thirty-one hockey players, some of whom will play this season for Toronto Maple Leafs, and most of whom won't work with knife and fork on steak and spinach.

"Remember when we fed one another?" breathed Frank into Conny's ear. "Sure, and we didn't have to feed any more all season," smiled Conny, managing-director of the National Hockey League club that now operates its own farm at Syracuse and this after-

Abjer Captures Newmarket Race

Canadian Press
Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 17.—Abjer, M. M. Bousac's bay colt by Asterous out of Zeriba, won the sixty-ninth renewal of the Middle Park Stakes here to-day. Abjer finished the six furlongs two lengths ahead of Miss Dorothy Paget's colt Bosover. The Aga Khan's Mahmoud was a third, a head behind Bosover. Abjer paid 8 to 1. Bosover 7 to 1 and Mahmoud 11 to 2. The race carries 1,000 sovereigns added. Thirteen ran.

HEAVIES WILL WRESTLE HERE

Zaharias, Wagner, London and Forsgren Listed For Card Saturday

Back to the mighty men of many pounds will swing wrestling interest here on Saturday as four heavies, Babe Zaharias, Don Wagner, Jack London and Jack Forsgren feature Promoter Fred Richardson's card at the Tillicum gym.

With the exception of Forsgren, who has built up quite a following here, the other grapplers, all of well-known ability, will be newcomers to the city. Zaharias made an impressive appearance in Vancouver last week when he dropped Brother Jonathan, husky Mormon grappler, and will doubtless catch the eye of the local crowd as he stacks up against Don Wagner, former football star, in the feature bout scheduled for eight ten-minute rounds.

Forsgren in semi-windup. Forsgren will tackle London, a cousin of the famed "Jeany," in the semi-windup over the five eight-minute round bout.

Richardson will probably be the third man in the ring. According to present plans, the opening winter card here on Saturday will start a series of bouts between leading matmen operating in the Pacific Coast circuit.

Both Wagner and Zaharias are well known by report, while Forsgren is a popular performer here. The bouts should draw a good crowd.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Equipment of Montreal Maroons was shipped to Winnipeg yesterday and the National Hockey League main squad will leave for the western city Saturday night. Bob Gracie, Earl Robinson and Jimmy Ward, who are in Kenora, and Blad Northcott and Bill McKenzie, at Winnipeg, will join the squad upon its arrival.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

A few hasty words, spoken in impatience by King Henry II, made him unwittingly become the cause of Thomas a Becket's murder. The murder of Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, was certainly not sought by the king because he must have known the disastrous results that were sure to follow.

The whipping did not completely atone for the murder of Becket started a series of events disastrous to Henry's reign. He was forced to complete surrender on his stand against the church's power, and in later years even the rebellious actions of his own sons were said to result from his part in Becket's fate.

To-morrow: Next to Nowhere.

TWO HORSES GIVEN DOPE

Party Breaks Into Stalls at Laurel Track and Tampers With Thoroughbreds

Laurel, Md., Oct. 17.—Race track officials here discovered today two horses, favorites in the fifth race for this afternoon, had been given deadening dope.

It was found someone had broken into the stalls of the horses during the night. The discovery was followed by an announcement calling off the race.

Intruder entered the stalls of Deduce and Silent Shot, favorites in the four-horse fifth. Boards had been torn loose from the tops of the stalls. Racing Secretary John Purcell Turner Sr. said the dope (chloral hydrate), apparently administered in capsule form, would have made the horses sleepy and left them deadened at post time.

Fred Krat, trainer of Deduce, owned by Mrs. H. L. Ughetta, found a white substance in the horse's mouth. This later was analyzed as dope. A capsule was found on the floor of the stall.

Krat reported the tampering with Deduce and Frank Garrett, trainer of Silent Shot, owned by John E. Hughes, Chicago, entered his stall to find someone had tampered with it. Racing Secretary Turner drew up a race for two-year-olds as the substitute for the cancelled race, which was for three-year-olds.

Fred Perry Again Tops Net Rankings

British Star Ranked Number One in World List; Mrs. Helen Wills Moody Heads Women's Group; Jack Crawford and Helen Jacobs Given Second Positions

New York, Oct. 17.—As a reward for her comeback conquest at Wimbledon, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody once again has been designated the foremost woman tennis player of the world. This ranking, which she held for seven years until she retired from competition late in 1933, was reported by A. Wallis Myers, prominent British expert, whose selections generally are accepted as official by the tennis world. Fred J. Perry was accorded number one spot in the men's division. Jack Crawford, Australia, and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, Germany, retained second and third, respectively; Wilmer Allison, United States champion, fourth; "Bunny" Austin, England, fifth; Donaldudge, Oakland, Cal., sixth; Frank X. Shields, New York, seventh; Vivian McGrath, Australia, eighth; Christian Bousquet, France, ninth, and Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York, tenth.

Blue Ribbons Form New Organization

Would Keep U.S. Out of Olympiad

Associated Press
Atlantic City, N.J., Oct. 17.—The American Federation of Labor voted today to oppose participation by United States in the Olympic Games next year at Berlin. The federation convention also voted that A.F. of L. members should not participate in the games, that a labor boycott on Nazi goods and services be intensified and that all unions should contribute to the fund for help of German Trade Union refugees.

Canadian Basketball Champions Will Play This Season as Independent Club Under Name of Victoria Dominos; Johnny Johnson Is President

Victoria's Canadian senior men's basketball champions, the former Blue Ribbons, will operate during the coming season as an independent club, under the name of Victoria Dominos. This was the decision reached by the players at a lengthy meeting held yesterday evening at the High School. It was first thought the team would be taken over by another sponsor, but after several meetings and conferences the players decided to operate their own club.

Holding the position of president of the new organization will be Johnny Johnson, well-known local sportsman and a keen supporter of the team since its formation years ago. Alderman James Adam, another prominent sportsman who is greatly interested in the case sport, has been elected vice-president, with John Baxter and Dr. J. F. Grant, the club doctor, as first and second vice-presidents.

Hon. Wells Gray was elected honorary president of the team with J. A. Barnwell, former manager and president of the Blue Ribbons, and Alderman Dr. J. D. Hunter as honorary vice-presidents. Albert Martin is acting secretary for the team until a definite selection is made.

NICOL IS MANAGER
Dave Nicol, who last season acted as trainer of the team, will be the manager for the coming campaign.

Secretary Martin stated to-day the team would travel to Port Alberni next Wednesday to usher in the season at the upland centre. The Dominos will stack up against the senior B squad of that town. With the following day a holiday it is quite possible the Victoria boys will engage in another game before getting back home Thursday night.

HOYLE-BROWN TAKE SECOND

Defending Cage Champs Whip Lake Hill 34 to 26; Chinese and Kresges Win

Jumping into a small lead in the first half and increasing this slightly throughout the game, Hoyle-Brown, men's senior B titleholders for the season 1934-35 in that division, displayed some tricky shooting to defeat Lake Hill 34 to 26 yesterday evening in the high school gymnasium to chalk up their second straight win.

Chinese Students and Hoyle-Brown, intermediate players, clashed in the second attraction of the evening in some fast-moving basketball that saw the former sweep into an eleven-point lead at half time and put on the pressure in the final canto to take the game 47 to 29. W. Lee scored six times for the Students totaling nine points in the first half. An additional five points in the last half brought his score up to fourteen, making him high scorer for the game.

KRESGES WIN
Playing in their first league game of the season Kresges girls swamped Burnetts 55 to 13 in the evening's opener. Dot O'Connor and V. Hannan were responsible for thirty-one of their team's points, the former netting thirteen and the latter brushing the webbing nine times for eighteen points.

RATTENBURY HOME DEAL CONTESTED

F. M. Rattenbury, architect of the British Columbia Parliament Buildings here and other outstanding buildings, who was murdered in England early this year, conveyed the large Rattenbury home on Beach Drive, Oak Bay, before his death to his second wife, Alma Victoria Rattenbury, H. A. Maclean, K.C. counsel for the Royal Trust, informed Mr. Justice Robertson of the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Rattenbury, before she committed suicide after her acquittal on the murder charge, turned the property over to the Royal Trust, Mr. Maclean explained. She had been negotiating with the Royal Trust for the disposal of the property. The trust company was in the position of trustee with power to sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the property. Mr. Maclean argued that in the transfer, power had been given to the Royal Trust to carry out the St. George and Dragon agreement, as the trust company was in the position of trustee with power to sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the property. W. H. Langley spoke for Mrs. Rattenbury.

The judge ordered the minor children be represented when the case comes up for hearing again for a ruling regarding the power of the trust company.

Citizens of Victoria to-day were reminded by the military inspector's department that the services of the city rat catcher would be available by appointment at any time. The rat catcher, who has been achieving considerable success in the city for some time, is being retained to assist the citizens in combating the rodents. Those wishing his assistance are advised to telephone the military inspector's office at the City Hall.

PRAISE GIVEN TRAINING PLAN

Cowichan Member Favors Youth Project on Road Work

Highly pleased with the success of the provincial government's young men's forestry training scheme, Hugh Savage, M.P.P. for Cowichan-Newcastle, who suggested this kind of a programme in his "hope plan for youth," came to Victoria to-day to urge an extension of the project next year.

Mr. Savage, who had one of the forestry camps in his own district, declared the scheme had done excellent work with the material at their disposal. The training afforded the young men in the camps would prove invaluable.

Mr. Savage said he would suggest to the government that in widening the programme next year men should work on scientific road construction on a similar basis. If finances were short he proposed they be recomposed on a deferred payment plan, receiving small allowances while working with the rest to be paid at a future date, possibly in five years.

Construction of a road to the Bannockburn station would be an ideal project for the scheme, he said.

Y.P.S. Debate On Transportation

The weekly meeting of the First United Y.P.S. was held Monday in the form of a debate, in charge of George Dickson, chairman of the literary committee. The subject of the debate was "Resolved that buses should replace street cars in Victoria."

The meeting opened with a short devotional in charge of Miss Evelyn Sidwell. A large crowd of young people were present for the debate, which was moderated by some excellent arguments on both sides. Miss Mae Miller and Edith Jones, upheld the affirmative, while Miss Grace Farr and Len Baker supported the negative. The debate was a very interesting one, and the evening was brought to a close with musical numbers by Miss Louise Demore and John Verker.

Next week's programme is under the direction of the Christian Fellowship and will be devoted to missionary work. Mrs. Burup, who has spent thirty-five years in India will be the guest speaker for the evening. The topic of her talk will be "India." All members are requested to attend.

UNITED POLICY IN AUSTRALIA

L. R. MacGregor, Trade Commissioner, Tells Rotarians of Nation's Progress

How Australia had faced the depression and largely beaten it with a policy of closer co-operation on a national scale than that put into effect by any other country was told to members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon to-day by L. R. MacGregor, Australian trade commissioner to Canada.

The depression hit Australia harder than most nations by diminishing her national income at the very time when her war-time obligations were coming due, he said. The federal government and the six states had the prospect at one time of facing a combined deficit in their budget of $2,500,000,000 per annum. But an energetic policy on a national scale, attempting to spread the burden evenly over all shoulders by the conversion of loans, the reduction of interest rates and mortgages and the lowering of rents had had the effect of almost equalizing the national budget.

EXTENT OF SLUMP

Mr. MacGregor quoted figures to show the extent to which the slump had hit his country. Australia's wool exports, for example, had fallen to 17 per cent. In 1932 the price was 56 cents per pound, and in 1933 it had fallen to only 16 cents. Other figures showed the extent of the nation's recovery. Unemployment which reached a peak of 30 per cent in 1932, had fallen back to 17 per cent. For the first three months of this year the total value of all building was four times that for the same months of 1932.

"Our national policy has been proven successful, and its success is reflected in our commercial progress," said Mr. MacGregor.

TRADE WITH CANADA

Speaking of Canadian-Australian trade, Mr. MacGregor said that it was in the ratio of between three and four to one in Canada's favor. Australia was Canada's third best customer, coming immediately after the United Kingdom and the United States.

Australia did not grudge the discrepancy between mutual trade figures of the two nations, being content that the business remained between sister dominions, and hoping that in the future Canada would find in Australian markets an even greater sale for her goods.

SOCIAL RELATIONS

The relations of Canada and Australia, social as well as commercial, were becoming ever more closely knit. To every Australian his life's ambition was to return to Great Britain. Many of those who fulfilled this ambition made the trip by way of Canada.

Mr. MacGregor regretted that more Canadians did not make use of Australia as the perfect summer playground which it was during the period of the Canadian winter.

PATTERN OF COUNTRY

He outlined briefly to the Rotarians the geographical, industrial, political and financial pattern of Australia. Its six states, he said, were politically very similar to Canadian provinces. Also the financial setting of the two dominions were comparable. With the entry of Trades Unionism into the political field thirty years ago, the distinctions of Conservative and Liberal had been lost, the two parties merging into a single United Australia party. At present, three states had Labor government, two were United Australia and one was Farmer-Labor. Federally the government was United Australia.

Mr. MacGregor told of the wide variety of produce and minerals to be found in the dominion, which was one-third tropical, one-third subtropical and one-third temperate. Australia's population, he said, was 97 per cent of British extraction.

Mr. MacGregor was introduced by T. J. Goodlake.

DAM STARTS NEW TOWNS

Grand Coulee Has Population of 12,000 Now, Says Rufus Woods

Predicting that the great Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River would bring an additional 1,000,000 people to the northwest and would be a tremendous factor in the development of the tourist traffic, Rufus Woods, a member of the commission and publisher and owner for the last twenty-nine years of The Wenatchee Weekly, this morning told something of the great building project now in progress 250 miles from Seattle.

Mr. Woods came to Victoria yesterday on the Ss. President Grant, accompanying the Vice-President's Congressional party. With Mrs. Woods he attended the dinner at the Empress Hotel in the evening and will return to Seattle this afternoon.

"We of the Northwest have just begun to realize the tremendous importance of our own waterpower," Mr. Woods said. In Mason City, which is a contractor's town on one side of the Columbia, the homes of the 3,000 residents have not a single chimney. All electricity is heating, lighting, cooking and water is provided by waterpower. In January the monthly cost for each home was $110, but in March it was down to $5 and in August it was only $1.58.

Where formerly only one family resided, there are now 12,000 residents. Mr. Woods reported. A number of small towns have sprung up near the site of the dam. Many of the people are engaged on the work of the dam and others cater to the large numbers of tourists who every day visit there. The World has a special correspondent there, who writes a page in the Wenatchee daily.

The town there, in addition to Mason City, are Grand Coulee, Coulee Centre, Coulee Heights, Osborne, Franklin and Basin City. On one Sunday, a few weeks ago, one restaurant served 1,100 extra meals, Mr. Woods said.

When completed the dam will provide power, irrigation and new navigation routes. A lake has been created which is 150 miles from the Canadian border. About 3,000,000 acres will be irrigated. It is such factors as these that will bring to the Northwest additional population during the next decade, Mr. Woods believes.

When completed the Grand Coulee will be the largest dam in the world. The rival now is the Boulder Dam in Nevada. Its total cost will be $125,000,000, of which $60,000,000 is now being expended. It was started in October, 1933, and will probably be finished within five years. It is 4,900 feet long, 500 feet high and 410 feet thick at the base. It will produce 1,000,000 primary and 1,000,000 secondary horsepower. While it will be twice as large as Boulder Dam, its cost will be about the same, Mr. Woods said. This is because much of the material is right on the ground.

The Grand Coulee Dam was first suggested by Mr. Woods in his paper in 1918. For his untiring efforts in promoting it he was honored in Wenatchee a few days ago at a public dinner.

Several distinguished visitors, in addition to President Roosevelt, have visited Grand Coulee. Some months ago Mr. Woods took M. Kandaloff, leading Russian engineer, there, and a few Sundays ago he took Ralph Budd, former president of the Great Northern Railway and now head of the Burlington Road, to view the site.

A few days from Wenatchee, Mr. Woods said, "There are fine roads all the way from Seattle."

CARL HORTHY IS FINE TENOR

Local Singer Who Studied in Italy Has Leading Role in "Lohengrin"

Carl Horthy, tenor, brings to the title role of "Lohengrin," which will be produced at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Friday and Saturday by the Victoria Civic Opera, a wealth of operatic experience gained in Europe. He comes to his native city with the acclaim of many accredited critics of English and continental centres. Wagner's opera, which is to be produced under the direction of Basil Horstall, himself a composer of operas and a well-known director on both this continent and Europe, offers Mr. Horthy ample opportunity of displaying the range, power and quality of his excellent voice.

The critic of The Corriere Della Sera, leading publication of Milan, Italy, centre of Italian opera, writes of Mr. Horthy: "True exponent of Italian Bel Canto."

"A notable feature about Horthy's singing is his extraordinary breath control which allows him to do perfect phrasing and the much-sustained passages with a minimum of effort," writes the opera critic of The London Times.

Other equally fine tributes are contained in accounts of other leading English newspapers.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—Can you teach an old dog new tricks? About four years ago I married a man who is all right in other respects, but his table manners and his English are atrocious. The way he eats an egg in the morning is positively nauseating, and I cannot go out with him any more to parties or restaurants for the embarrassment he causes me by the way he devours his food. I would not hurt his feelings for anything, but I cannot stand it any longer. It makes me miserable. Will it be better for me to leave him? I cannot change him. He resents my every effort to improve his manners and his grammar. MAY BELLE.

Answer—Well, May Belle, if I were you before I bought me a ticket for Reno I would do a high and fancy balancing act, and try to find out if a good husband and a good home and a shopping ticket that is good at the best shops do not offset a few lapses in grammar and table manners that are not quite Emily Post.

I don't wonder that bad English gets on your nerves, and that you hate to see a man battle an egg, with the egg coming out victorious on his shirt and tie, and that you sometimes think that even a jazz orchestra is preferable to having a man goggle his soup, but believe me, lady, all these drawbacks and disadvantages to your present estate would look mighty small and insignificant if you found yourself standing alone in the world with your own living to make and no job in sight and no good, kind sturdy man to lean on.

It's what is in a husband's heart and not what's on his tongue that matters. It's the way he provides for his wife, not his technique with forks and spoons that count. Many a man whose English is flawless never says a kind and tender thing to his wife. Many a man whose table manners are impeccable lets his wife work to support him, and his wife would gladly exchange him for a husband who provided the eggs, no matter how he ate them, and who told her that he loved her even if he murdered the King's English in doing so.

But how come, May Belle, that you married a man whose English and table manners you find it impossible to endure? They haven't changed since the days of courtship and surely then you must have gone out to dinner with him and listened to his wooing in the same language that he uses now.

You were not deaf then nor blind and if you could overlook his lapses before marriage why not shut your eyes to them now when it is so much more vital to you to be blind and deaf to what you do not wish to see nor hear. Your husband did not misrepresent himself to you in any way and so you are being a very poor sport in welching on your bargain because you find you do not like certain qualities that your husband had, and that you knew that he had when you married him.

Of course, your husband doesn't like to have you criticize him. Nor would you like for him to criticize you. Husbands and wives cannot endure the thought that their partner does not admire them and nothing breaks up a marriage so quickly as fault-finding.

My advice to you is to go off on a trip somewhere away from where you can hear him spit an infinitive and see him tuck his napkin under his chin. In a little while you'll forget that he is a rough diamond and realize how valuable a gem he is, and you'll be glad enough to come back to him, no matter what he does to an egg or the English language.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a boy of seventeen. My problem is this: My mother will not let me think for myself and I'm going nuts. She will not allow me to go to a show unless she takes me, but all the boys in my crowd can go alone to a night movie once in a while, and even take a girl now and then, but not me. Mother says that I have plenty of time for that when I get to be twenty-one, but I'd like to go a little now. Can it be that my mother is right and a million other boys wrong who allow their nearly grown children some liberty? I know that Mother is "thinking of me only," as she says, but I would enjoy thinking for myself some time now, not when I'm twenty-one. HEN-PECKED SEVENTEEN.

Answer—You have my sympathy, poor little overmothered lad. Your mother doesn't realize it but she is doing you as deadly a wrong in not letting you think for yourself, or decide things for yourself, even when you are seventeen years old as she would have done if she had kept you from learning how to walk until you are that age.

No mother would be cruel enough to handicap her child physically by preventing it from using its body. On the contrary, she teaches her babe to stand on its own feet. She teaches it how to walk, she encourages it to develop its muscles by playing and leaping and jumping, even though she knows that it is bound to get bumps and bruises and is in danger of breaking its arms and legs.

But she does all in her power to keep her child dependent upon her and from using its mental muscles. She will decide every question for her child instead of letting it exercise its own judgment. She won't let the child do its own thinking or develop its own character and the excuse that she makes for this is that she is afraid that the child will make mistakes, that he may get to know the wrong people or make injudicious decisions.

A little millionaire who had always been surrounded by nurses and governesses and guards was killed by an automobile the first time he ever tried to cross a street alone. The grief-stricken mother cried out against the injustice of this, when little newsboys dashed in and out under the wheels of speeding cars without a scratch. The answer was plain—the child who had never had to think for itself could not take care of itself in life.

The child who had always had to depend upon himself could take care of himself. For, alas, our mothers cannot always go with us and hold us by the hand and protect us against the dangers and hardships we must meet, and if they have not prepared us for this, they have failed as mothers.

Twenty-one is too late to let a boy think for himself. He should have begun that in his cradle. DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily and the Leaf House

By HOWARD R. GARIS

One day when Uncle Wiggily was hopping around looking for an adventure, he saw five or six little mice children from the field gathering leaves and putting them in a pile.

"Hello, children," called the rabbit gentleman. "Are you going to have a bonfire? If you are, you are very careful about matches. Burns are very painful."

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily," said a cute little mouse girl, "we aren't going to make a bonfire."

"The why are you gathering the leaves?" asked Mr. Longears.

"To build a house," answered a boy mouse.

"Oh, a playhouse, I see," said Uncle Wiggily. "That's fine. It is fine to see children like you making their own fun. When your playhouse is finished I'll come and see you."

"This isn't going to be a playhouse," said one of the boy mice as he twisted his long tail around a bunch of leaves so he could carry them to the pile.

"Yes, indeed, Uncle Wiggily," squeaked the mouse mother as she came running up with a basket of leaves which she put on the pile of others the children were making.

"Indeed I'll do that," promised the rabbit gentleman. "But why don't you live for the winter in the house where you have been staying this summer?"

"Because in the summer, which is now over," explained Mrs. Mouse, "we lived in a corn field. We ate corn. My husband and I with the children made our home in a clump of dried grass near a hill of corn. That did very well in the warm summer. But now that winter is coming with snow and cold winds, we need a better house. So we are making one of leaves. It will be warm and cozy."

Uncle Wiggily watched the mice build their leaf house. If you had seen it you would have thought it was a pile of leaves such as you might gather for a bonfire. But the mice had made a fine house indeed. There was a kitchen, a breakfast nook, a living room and several bedrooms. There was even a leaf bathroom.

When the house was almost finished all of a sudden a strong wind blew and scattered the pile of leaves, making the house as flat as a pancake.

"Oh, dear!" squeaked Mrs. Mouse. "Our leafy house is spoiled! That's the first time it has happened to-day. Every time we get our leaf house built the wind blows it down. Oh, dear! What shall we do?"

"I'll help you," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "The trouble with your leaf house is that it isn't fastened together as a brick house is with mortar or a wooden house is with nails. You must fasten the leaves together. I'll bring you some molasses and with that you can stick the leaves together beautifully."

"Oh, thank you," squeaked Mrs. Mouse. Uncle Wiggily soon brought some molasses from his hollow stump bungalow. When the molasses was poured over the leaves they stuck nicely together. Then when the mouse house was rebuilt the wind couldn't blow it down as the leaves were very happy. And if the tin solder doesn't break his drum so hard that it cries all night, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's geography lesson.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1935

This should be a fairly lucky day, according to astrology. It is read as especially fortunate for women and their interests.

There is a forbidding sign for beginnings of every sort, and first nights in the theatre may be disappointing, although both stage and screen are to have a season of extraordinary success.

This should be favorable for romance. First meetings with persons of opposite sex should be promising in future possibilities. Engagements to marry made and this way should be lucky and preface happiness. True improvement due to hard trial vision are general while this configuration continues.

This is a promising sign for journeys on the water and for travel for pleasure. Many notable visitors will come to the United States.

In the coming winter much suffering appears to be prepared, for in certain European countries the people will want for food and employment.

While the British Empire will boast of trade revival and attract American investment, notable visitors will cause great anxiety.

Persons whose birthdate is 18 have the augury of a year of pain and general progress, but they should be careful regarding investments.

Children born on this day probably will be intellectual and industrious. Subjects of this sign may have artistic sympathies. Helen Hunt Jackson, author, was born on this day, 1831. Others who have celebrated as a "birthday" include Henri Bergson, philosopher, 1859, and Amos Bunnay, naturalist, 1863.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is increased circulation of blood in the lower bowels. That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeded because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have only to get a bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. Macfarlane & Co. supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

Congressional Party Had Pleasant Visit

Most Members of Party Were Visiting City For First Time; Flowers and Music Welcome Them Here

After an eventful day which included an official farewell in Seattle, a five-hour trip through Puget Sound and the Straits, giving most of the members of the party their first glimpse of the Olympic Mountains and the shoreline of Vancouver Island, a drive about Victoria and a dinner at the Empress Hotel, members of the U.S. Vice-President's congressional party are to-day aboard the President Grant en route to the Orient and Manila, where they will attend the official inauguration of the president of the new Philippine Commonwealth.

The majority of the party, including the Vice-President and Mrs. Garner, had never been to Victoria before. They were charmed when the mountains came in view and they thought the islands of the lower Gulf the most perfect they had ever seen. Senators and representatives and their wives from the middle west said they had no idea such a variety of scenery was to be found on this coast.

PLAYED DECK GAMES

Members of Congress forgot political worries and cares the minute the liner was away from Seattle. They played deck games, a number of them saying they had better get in what they could while the liner was in sheltered waters. Most of them wondered what to-day would bring in the way of weather on the open Pacific.

The President Grant was a veritable garden of flowers yesterday. Masses of them were put aboard in Seattle before she sailed and still more came on here. All cabins had their quota and large baskets of fruit and other gifts were noticed.

The Vice-President and his wife, who occupied one of the suite-de-luxe, just below the bridge, had so many flowers they gave some to friends in Seattle before the liner pulled out. During luncheon the ladies on the ship were presented with corsage bouquets of white gardenias and pink roses by the Filipino Club of Seattle.

Victoria's first greeting was a box of flowers—white Pilot—Charles Harris brought out with him aboard the pilot boat. They were for Mrs. Garner. As the ship approached the dock, highland music could be heard and fifteen minutes after the liner docked all the passengers were ashore, being driven about by representative leaders of Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Garner were the first off the ship, being met by Premier Pattullo and driven to Government House.

Violence During Longshore Strike

Houston, Texas, Oct. 17.—The sixth day of the strike of the International Longshoremen's Association in Texas and at Lake Charles, La., was marked by violence yesterday.

Two negroes were beaten down-town, another was attacked near the docks and a white man was assaulted in the vicinity of the waterfront. Two persons who said they were members of the I.L.A. were arrested in connection with two of the beatings.

CREW QUILTS POINT ANCHA

Eight Members of Crew Walk Off Ship Because She Was Going to Gulf of Mexico

San Pedro, Calif., Oct. 17.—Eight members of the crew of the freighter Point Ancha quit their jobs yesterday in protest against sailing for Gulf of Mexico ports where a longshoreman's strike is in progress.

They were paid off before the Federal Commissioner and efforts made to hire non-union men to replace them. Sailing of the Point Ancha was delayed.

A test of harbor sentiment concerning the Gulf of Mexico strike was expected a week from to-morrow when the Katrina Luckenbach, will arrive from New Orleans with a cargo loaded by non-union men. Local unionists said they would refuse to unload the "hot cargo."

The Matson Line freighter, General M. H. Sherman, continued tied up at its dock as the result of a strike which objected to the loading of Standard Oil fuel. The Lurline, crack passenger liner, tied up alongside the freighter but there was no disturbance and it was expected to sail for Honolulu and the Antipodes on schedule.

SHIPS COLLIDE AT MONTREAL

White Star liner Ascania was struck midships by the smaller Norwegian in Montreal Harbor yesterday and a large hole torn in her side. The Norwegian's prow was dented. Damage to the liner was not considered serious enough to prevent a scheduled sailing for Europe Friday. Repairs are being made.

The Norwegian was heading for a berth when the collision occurred. She buried her nose in the port side of the Ascania moored at her dock and also grazed the Alhena, another Cunard White Star ship.

WILL STUDY PROPOSALS

Longshoremen to Decide on Five-point Programme Regarding Troubles

Vancouver, Oct. 17.—Members of the Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' Association will decide to-day if they wish a five-point programme drawn up by the central strike committee submitted to the British Columbia Shipping Federation.

The strikers' proposal were formulated after the men had turned a five-point proposal advanced by the federation.

The strikers' points are:
1. One hour on the waterfront. (Previously with the men doing their own dispatching as one of the federation points turned down yesterday gave the employers control of the dispatching hall.)
2. Reinstatement of the former agreement between the federation and the V. and D.W.W.A.
3. No discrimination.
4. The V. and D.W.W.A. to be the only recognized union on the waterfront. (At present the federation recognizes only the Canadian Waterfront Workers' Association, formed after members of the V. and D.W.W.A. went on strike last June.)
5. Men now working on the waterfront being accepted by the V. and D.W.W.A. as members subject to approval of the association members. If the strikers approve the five points prepared by their strike committee the proposals will be submitted to the federation.

Ss. Rotterdam Aids Schooner

New York, Oct. 17.—The liner Rotterdam, freed from a coral reef in the Caribbean, played the Good Samaritan on its voyage here from Jamaica, Captain Johan Van Dulken disclosed yesterday after docking at Hoboken.

Along the windward passage north of Cuba, the captain sighted a three-masted schooner with her British flag upside down, a sign of distress. The negro captain, John Hamilton, said the schooner had been becalmed and he and ten companions had not had enough food and water for two days. The Rotterdam provided a supply of both. Hamilton expressed profuse thanks.

"Oh, that's all right," replied Captain Van Dulken. "I was in distress myself only a few days ago."

Famous Raider Meets Old Foes

German "Sea Devil" Tells How He Evaded Capture During Great War

By THOMAS T. CHAMFION

London, Oct. 17.—Count Felix von Luckner, whose exploits as commander of the German raider Seeadler earned him the title of "Sea Devil," visited England recently with Countess von Luckner.

During his stay in London the count met British naval officers, including Sir Reginald Hall, who, as chief of the British Naval Intelligence Department during the war years, endeavored to capture the "Sea Devil" while he was raiding British shipping.

Count von Luckner, asked how he managed to evade capture for so long during the war, said: "You see, I was sailing in British, Scandinavian and every other kind of ship. I know what a reputation British have for chivalry, so I had my sixteen-year-old boy on board a Norwegian ship dressed as my wife. Then I had a gramophone playing 'Tipperary.' It was really good fun. But never during all my raids did I take a single human life."

The count began his adventures early, for he ran away to Australia when he was thirteen. There he joined the Salvation Army. In 1903, when he visited England, he was working as an ordinary sailor on a boat which took a cargo of clay to Plymouth; fifteen years later he was notorious in this country, for he sank ships worth $40,000,000. He captured seventeen ships within a few weeks and sank them, but made sure that the crews were safe first.

"You see," he explained, "I have always regarded myself as a citizen of the sea, and when I have come across an enemy ship, those manning her, too, were citizens of the sea."
